EX-Cop Discovers $100,000 Cache

DURHAM, N. C. (AP)—Vernon L. Maynor, a former policeman, says he found "in excess of $100,000" on his property Monday.

Maynor, who now runs a telephone answering service, declined to pinpoint the location of the find, but said:

"I don't know for sure whether it's counterfeit, but if it's not and somebody proves ownership, I'll certainly turn it over to him."

"Otherwise, I consider it mine."

The find, Maynor said, consisted of 89 $1,000 bills and the remainder in $50 bills, all dated before 1946.

Gaillard Eyes Top Paris Post Premiership May Go To Young Financier

PARIS (AP)—Radical Socialist Felix Gaillard, 37-year-old financial wizard and advocate of national belt-tightening, was asked today to form a government to fill the French political vacuum.

President Rene Coty called on the bespectacled young advocate of austerity after the National Assembly rejected Socialist Guy Mollet 290-227.

Gaillard, finance minister in the last government of Maurice Bourges-Maunoury, indicated he would sound out other political leaders before accepting or rejecting the mandate tonight.

If he tries and succeeds, he will be the youngest French premier of modern history.

Mollet's chances were doomed when the Conservative Independents and Peasants, with 99 Assembly votes, decided to oppose him. This realigned for Socialist refusal earlier to support independent candidate Antoine Pinay.

THE CABINET crisis now is rounding out a month.

Gaillard on some previous occasions has had solid backing from the Independents, and they may hold the balance in any attempt by him to form a government.

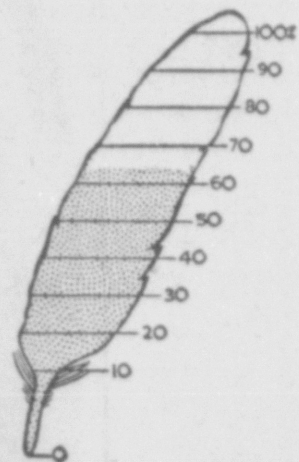

Calling the signals for the Bourges-Maunoury finance program, Gaillard succeeded in winning approval of new taxes, reduced spending and strict government controls of imports and exports.

He persuaded the Assembly last August to place a ceiling of $15 billion on the 1958 budget—$14 billion less than this year's budget.

Red Feather Contributions Top $15,000

After three full weeks of solicitation, the Fayette County Community Chest fund has reached $15,091.88, according to Perse Harlow, executive secretary.

"That is 64 per cent of our goal," of $23,500 Harlow pointed out.

Money received over the weekend and deposited Monday totaled $2,242.83.

With less than a week to go, Chest executives hope to begin receiving a larger number of reports from house-to-house solicitations. "The flu has tended to slow this work," Harlow says, "particularly in the rural areas where the flu has hit most severely." Most of the business, industrial and industrial employ groups have been reported.

"It may be necessary to extend our original deadline," Harlow said. "The fund goal is the absolute minimum now and just cannot be lowered."

PORTLAND, England (AP)—The Royal Navy announced Monday the entire Portland Naval Base shore patrol, 16 officers and men, has been suspended from duty in an investigation of thefts from service provisions.

Levittown OK'd For Negro Home-Buyers

LEVITTOWN, Pa. (AP)—A temporary injunction was continued Monday by a Bucks County judge restraining residents of Levittown from attempting "by force, violence or intimidation to prevent the sale of any property in this community to any Negro."

The injunction, granted last Wednesday, resulted from charges by the state against eight residents of inciting racial disturbances against the community's only Negro family, Mr. and Mrs. William Myers and their three children.

Judge Edwin Satterthwaite granted the continuance pending a full hearing in December after conferring with Atty. Gen. Thomas D. McBride, and attorneys for the eight defendants. He said defense attorneys asked the continuance to prepare an answer to the state's charges.

The Myers family moved into the white community of some 60,000 homes last August despite protests and demonstrations by some residents. State police broke up numerous gatherings, some resulting in stone throwing.

Four Schools Still Closed

Flu Now Leveling Off In Most of County

Although four schools in the Miami Trace district are still closed, a check Tuesday indicated that the flu, which has made some big dents in attendance during the last two weeks, is now leveling off.

Still closed are the Bloomingburg, Marion, Madison Mills and New Martinsburg schools. Superintendent W. W. Boyer said. He explained that the Marion School was closed because of an exchange of students with Bloomingburg and not because of excessive absenteeism.

In the Washington C. H. schools, absenteeism is decreasing. Superintendent W. A. Smith said only 15.6 per cent of the students were out Tuesday, compared with 18.4 per cent Monday.

In Monday's report from Good Hope Schools that 72 per cent of the students were absent, the figures were transposed in the confusion at school headquarters and 72 per cent were present. Also in error was the report that the Olive School was still closed; this school is open now, it was said, but no

Russian Foreign Moves Seen Possible by Dulles

Arms Research Cuts Outlawed

New Defense Chief Reverses Old Order

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Defense Department has ordered the military services to make no cuts in the $1.7 billion which Congress voted for basic research in the current fiscal year.

Secretary of Defense Neil H. McElroy, who took office Oct. 10, Monday announced modification of an Aug. 17 economy memorandum issued by his predecessor Charles E. Wilson.

The Wilson memo had the effect of curtailing some basic research spending, although Pentagon aides said this had not been intended.

Wilson's Aug. 17 memorandum told the services to cut their spending by an amount equal to 10 per cent of the $1.7 billion approved for basic research.

A spokesman said Wilson had intended that the reductions be made out of $3.6 billion set up for procurement and production in research and development.

But the interpretation the various services attached to the memorandum resulted, in the end in the curtailment of basic research spending.

MEANWHILE, Russia's Sputnik, a major factor in the quickening interest in U. S. research, silently orbited the earth at 18,000 m.p.h. It was launched Oct. 4.

The sphere's radio ceased transmissions four days ago, and there have been no U. S. sightings either of Sputnik or of its rocket section in the last few days because their orbits do not now bring them across this continent during twilight or dawn.

The Army disclosed Monday that its new Hawk missile has a radar device that ignores stationary objects and speeds the weapon toward moving aerial targets. The Army said the Hawk can destroy invading aircraft even at treetop level.

Zhukov Rally Seen As Red Chieftains Meet in Moscow

LONDON (AP)—Indications grew today that Marshal Georgi Zhukov had rallied unexpected support in a showdown battle over power and policies inside the central committee of the Soviet Communist party.

The delay in announcing a decision on whether Zhukov would remain a member of the ruling party Presidium, or Politburo, contributed to an impression that a battle was on between the marshal and Soviet party boss Nikita Khrushchev.

The impression was heightened by the tight Moscow censorship. Even the Communist press outside the Soviet Union seemed confused by the blackout.

Editorials in the Communist press indicated the marshal was being accused of interfering with party control of the army.

The lack of an announcement suggested he may have staged a counter attack in the party's central committee meeting.

It seemed clear that Zhukov and Khrushchev had clashed at least on three points:

1. ZHUKOV, a professional soldier, had sought to hold down the influence of Communist political workers in the ranks of the armed forces.

2. Zhukov had insisted louder than anyone else on the rehabilitation of the memories of Red army leaders purged as traitors by Stalin in the 1930s. The marshal apparently carried no personal guilt in these purges, but Khrushchev and other top party people resumably do.

3. Khrushchev's bold moves in the Middle East, particularly his fanning of the crisis over Syria, had aroused the instincts of caution of Zhukov and perhaps of other army men.

Khrushchev has been openly rattling the saber at Turkey and the United States, accusing them of plotting to attack Syria because of its new pro-Communist orientation.

Zhukov has in the past been pictured as a conservative army man without inclination to take risks of war.

The Central Committee of the Communist party, which has been meeting off and on ever since Zhukov was ousted Saturday, had been expected to make an important announcement today.

Reports reaching London indicated it would tell of Zhukov's removal from the 15-man party Presidium, its all-powerful politburo of which he became a full member only four months ago.

BUT BOTH Moscow radio and the Moscow press remained silent. Hints filtered through the tight censorship in the Soviet capital that the committee was still grappling with its problems after an all-night session.

Editors of Moscow newspapers were called Monday to a conference at which Western observers believed they were briefed on the expected announcement.

All the papers went to press this morning, however, with no mention of either Zhukov or the Central Committee meeting.

Adult Ohioans Seen Next Victims of Asian Flu Attack

COLUMBUS (AP)—Adult Ohioans may be the next target for the Asian flu outbreak that has been affecting children throughout the state, Ohio Health Director Ralph E. Dwork warns.

The health director, making a report to Gov. C. William O'Neill, based his admonition on reports of the course of the disease in other states.

Dr. Robert Haines reported that 20,000 shots of flu vaccine had been given to inmates of state institutions. He said enough vaccine for another 30,000 shots was on the way and would be administered upon receipt. Institution personnel previously were vaccinated against the flu, he added.

Zhukov's Lone Wolf Ideas Seen Cause of His Ouster

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

One charge being made against Marshal Georgi Zhukov in Moscow apparently is that as commander of the armed forces he wanted to run his own show without being undercut by Nikita Khrushchev.

When Police Chief Lavrenty Beria was purged in June 1953 and executed, one of his "crimes" was that he wanted to run his own police show without behind his back interference from the Communist party apparatus headed by Khrushchev.

But in the Soviet Union all shows are run by the Communist party. It maintains the right to control all organizations—not just through their official chiefs but also by dealing directly with party representatives within the organizations.

A Moscow dispatch in the London Daily Worker said Zhukov was charged at a session of the party Central Committee with hindering the work of Communist

Free World Said 'Alert'

Maneuver Claim Tied To Internal Upheaval

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles said today that in a period of domestic Russian upheaval the United States and the rest of the free world must be on the alert for possible foreign moves by the Soviet.

Dulles told a news conference he would not want to give the impression that war is just around the corner. He said he does not really think that is true.

But whenever a great nation has internal troubles, he said, it is historical fact that such troubles lead to external acts. Under such conditions, Dulles said, the United States is always on the alert for what the Soviet Union might do.

The present situation, revolving around the mystery of the reasons for Marshal Georgi Zhukov's dismissal as defense minister, has not required any special alert, Dulles said, because all the top people in the U. S. government are aware of the possibilities.

Dulles also made these statements on the current Soviet situation and other international issues:

1. If President Eisenhower is invited to attend the NATO Council meeting in Paris in December he will give the invitation sympathetic consideration.

2. IF THE SOVIET government proposed Marshal Zhukov as ambassador to Washington, it would be up to Eisenhower to determine whether he was acceptable because the President always makes decisions on ambassadors. There has been some speculation that the Russians might make such a proposal. Zhukov and Eisenhower were associated in World War II.

3. Projected new division of defense duties among the United States and its allies will not involve any reduction in defense spending in this country but may mean some shifting of funds among military projects. Dulles also said the United States intends to maintain its manpower commitments in Europe and the Far East.

Nationalists Count 24 Raids on Mainland

The announcement said the patrols killed "scores" of Communist soldiers and captured 21 junks and other small craft.

State Shares Motor Vehicle License Fund

COLUMBUS (AP)—State Auditor James A. Rhodes today reported distribution of $13½ million in motor vehicle license money to counties, cities and villages.

He said it was the final distribution of 1956 auto tag funds. An advance distribution of 1957 license tag money will be made next month, he reported.

School Aid Bill Heads for Shelf

WASHINGTON (AP)—Federal aid for school construction, twice turned down by Congress in the last two years, has been quietly ticketed for a House committee pigeonhole at the 1958 session.

A decision to drop the school aid fight temporarily was disclosed today by Rep. Cleveland M. Bailey (D-W.Va.), chairman of the House subcommittee on general education.

Politics, the bitter school segregation issue, and Democratic irritation with President Eisenhower's leadership in last session's school aid battle were all factors contributing to the decision, Bailey said.

As chairman of the House subcommittee controlling school legislation, Bailey said he intended to sit on the bill at the next session of Congress which opens in January.

"The administration had its chance last year," Bailey said, referring to the 208-203 House defeat handed a $1½ billion aid bill which reflected most of the administration's proposals.

ON THIS VOTE, 111 Republicans and 97 Democrats teamed to kill the bill. Against killing it were 77 Republicans and 126 Democrats.

"First of all, the Eisenhower administration wants to make a political issue of school grants," Bailey declared. "An election year is a bad time to play politics with school needs."

While planning to drop general school assistance next year, Bailey said his subcommittee plans to continue special assistance to local school districts overburdened

Cleveland Unionist's Garage Is Bombed

CLEVELAND (AP)—A garage attached to the home of Jesse Gallagher, regional director of the AFL-CIO, in suburban Rocky River was bombed early today.

Gallagher, his wife, Geraldine, and their two children were asleep when the blast occurred about 2:10 a.m. No one was injured.

Lt. C. A. Woods of the Rocky River police said Gallagher told him two or three sticks of dynamite were set off in the garage.

State Department Employee Gets New Job; Saud Gift OK'd

WASHINGTON (AP)—Victor Purse changed jobs in the State Department today after official findings that he showed "bad judgment" but still legally may keep a gift car from King Saud.

His transfer from deputy chief protocol to a post in the Bureau of International Organization Affairs puts the 39-year-old Purse back in the line of work in which he started in the department 14 years ago.

The switch was announced Monday night by the department after two hearings. It climaxed a feud which had been quietly going on between the energetic Purse and his boss, Protocol Chief Wiley T. Buchanan.

The department announcement said Purse's new job was temporary "pending further consideration." It said it had been planned for months in the interest of Purse's career development, and had no direct relation to the acceptance by Purse's wife of a 1957 Oldsmobile from King Saud of Saudi Arabia last June.

But the department said the gift to the Purse family came without formal consultation with Purse's State Department superiors. It called that "an exercise of bad judgment on his part."

The formal announcement came after State Department spokesmen acknowledged that Secretary Dulles had accepted gifts from Saud—a gold wrist watch, an Arabian robe and a suitcase.

Spokesmen said Dulles turned these items over to protocol to see whether he could keep them. But they refused to say whether Dulles later reclaimed them, as did more than a score of other department employees who enjoyed Saud's handouts.

These others included about 10 department security men who were assigned to Saud during the Middle East monarch's 10-day Washington visit last February. He gave them wrist watches and a total of $6,700 in cash. They eventually were allowed to keep the watches, but the cash still is being held pending a decision on whether it, too, can go to its intended recipients.

Committee Is Named To Study Need for Nurses at Hospital

There has long been a need for nurses at Memorial Hospital here—and now something is being done about it.

A committee appointed by the board of trustees to study the future of nursing on the local level and seek solutions to some of the problems arising from the scarcity of nurses held its organizational meeting at the hospital Monday afternoon.

On the committee are two physicians, Dr. James E. Rose and Dr. Frank King; two trustees, Marilyn Riley and Mrs. Fern Chaffin; two representatives of business and industry, Mrs. S. Max Thomas and Joseph Peters; and two nurses, Mrs. Roy Coe Jr. and Mrs. Corrine Sperry. Miss Christine Evans, hospital administrator, was made an ex-officio member.

This federal program of school aid to impacted areas has funneled around $1.2 billion in federal school construction funds into some 2,300 local school districts in the last six years.

Additional millions of dollars of federal aid have been spent for maintenance and operation of overcrowded buildings in impacted areas since the program began in 1951. The current budget provides approximately $89 million for this purpose.

Series Tells Problems of Space Travel

For years we have been on the threshold, toying fictionally with ideas of space travel. Now the space age is here, in all its grim and yet exciting realism, ushered in with a fanfare of beeps from Sputnik.

With the problems of space no longer just grist for the mills of the science fiction writers, questions fill the minds of many people. How to get to the moon, or to Mars? What will it be like aboard a spaceship? When can humans go? And dozens more.

Associated Press science writer Alton Blakeslee answers them in a four-part series of articles starting in this newspaper today.

The first story deals with the strange new life man will find in the spaceship. The second tells of the various means of space travel and speculates on the possible existence of space hotels. The third treats with the various reasons for traveling into space anyway—the possibility of learning more about the universe. The fourth questions the date when man may first pack his suitcase and board a space ship for the moon—possibly only 10 years from now.

State Department Employee Gets New Job; Saud Gift OK'd

WASHINGTON (AP)—Victor Purse changed jobs in the State Department today after official findings that he showed "bad judgment" but still legally may keep a gift car from King Saud.

His transfer from deputy chief protocol to a post in the Bureau of International Organization Affairs puts the 39-year-old Purse back in the line of work in which he started in the department 14 years ago.

The switch was announced Monday night by the department after two hearings. It climaxed a feud which had been quietly going on between the energetic Purse and his boss, Protocol Chief Wiley T. Buchanan.

The department announcement said Purse's new job was temporary "pending further consideration." It said it had been planned for months in the interest of Purse's career development, and had no direct relation to the acceptance by Purse's wife of a 1957 Oldsmobile from King Saud of Saudi Arabia last June.

But the department said the gift to the Purse family came without formal consultation with Purse's State Department superiors. It called that "an exercise of bad judgment on his part."

The formal announcement came after State Department spokesmen acknowledged that Secretary Dulles had accepted gifts from Saud—a gold wrist watch, an Arabian robe and a suitcase.

Spokesmen said Dulles turned these items over to protocol to see whether he could keep them. But they refused to say whether Dulles later reclaimed them, as did more than a score of other department employees who enjoyed Saud's handouts.

These others included about 10 department security men who were assigned to Saud during the Middle East monarch's 10-day Washington visit last February. He gave them wrist watches and a total of $6,700 in cash. They eventually were allowed to keep the watches, but the cash still is being held pending a decision on whether it, too, can go to its intended recipients.

Door Opened to Associate Members

Hospital Bond Issue And Levy Proposals Endorsed by Jaycees

The Washington C. H. Junior Chamber of Commerce took two important actions at its meeting Monday night: (1) endorsed the hospital bond issue and operating levy proposals and (2) opened the door of the organization to associate members.

Committee chairman for the Thursday night's Halloween extravaganza also were named, support of the "attack on traffic accidents" was approved and a discussion of juvenile delinquency problems was held to round out one of the busiest sessions the Jaycees have had in some time.

There was very little discussion of either the proposal to issue to $780,000 in bonds to expand Memorial Hospital or of the proposal for a levy of .65 of a mill to meet its current expenses before they both were given overwhelming endorsement.

IN OPENING the door to associate members, the Jaycees made it possible for anyone 18 years old or older to participate in their organization's community betterment program. The only restriction is that associate members have no vote on the Jaycees proposals. Members of active members is within the 21-35-year-old age bracket.

The discussion of juvenile delinquency was led by Ray Anderson, who outlined some of the problems and some of the possible solutions.

In backing the "attack on traffic accidents," the Jaycees laid plans to put a wrecked car in some prominent place in the city where it would remain as visual evidence of traffic danger. Neither the time nor the place for the grim exhibit was set, but indications are that it will not be long before the horrible example will be set up.

For the Halloween extravaganza, Bill Hastings was named the parade marshal; Dick Arnett was placed in charge of the judging; Jack Cannon of the Jaycee float for the parade; Gene Sagar of the treats to be given to the kiddies and Dick Willis the pie-eating contest.

Durable Fish Given Freedom

PONTELAND, England (AP) — A 2-pound fish which survived a 270-mile automobile trip and 17 hours out of water was rewarded with its liberty today.

George Clay, an engineer, caught the fish, a tench, on a weekend fishing trip in Worcester-shire. The angler wrapped his catch in a dry newspaper, put it in the trunk of his car, drove home and left it overnight in his garage.

Clay relieved the fish Monday, slapped it on a kitchen table and said to his wife, "let's have him fried." As Mrs. Clay poised her knife, the tench wriggled. Later he swam briskly around the bathtub.

Clay turned the fish loose in a nearby lake.

Month's Bond Sales $61,441 for County

Ohio sales of Series E and H U. S. savings bonds for September were the highest for that month since 1948.

Sales of these two savings bonds exceeded $23 million dollars for a gain of 27 per cent over September 1956 as compared to a national gain of 8 per cent.

September sales in Fayette County totaled $61,441.

In commenting on the sales R. H. Olinger Chairman of the county Savings Bonds Committee stated, "Continuing high sales of Savings Bonds in Ohio reflect not only the growing industrial might of our state but also that the people who work in factories, offices and retail concerns have accepted the automatic payroll savings plan as a sure, steady way to accumulate large savings. In Ohio alone the people hold more than 4 billions in all series of Savings Bonds."

NATO Trials Said Not Tied to Turkey

PARIS (AP) — Gen. Lauris Norstad said today NATO maneuvers opening Thursday in the Mediterranean area will be well separated from the Turkish-Syrian tension area.

The supreme Allied command issued a statement following Middle East press charges that the maneuvers were a form of pressure against Syria on behalf of Turkey.

Royal Air Force planes and units of the U. S. 6th Fleet will stay west of a line drawn through the middle of Cyprus and there will be no flying over Turkey, Norstad said.

Small Reward Indeed For Such a Headache

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Caesar a large boxer, got his picture in the paper—and a king-sized headache.

Spotting a piece of metal in a vacant lot, the dog stuck his head in the hole in the center. He couldn't get out. There he stayed all night.

A welder finally released Caesar, after wrapping him in a wet sheet of asbestos to keep the dog from being burned by the blow torch.

Its the Statehouse

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — An out-of-state visitor asked several persons for directions to the capitol. She was sent to a theater, a newspaper and a restaurant, all of which had the word capitol in their names. She finally located, unaided, the building known locally as the Statehouse since 1694.

Inventor's Home Once Capital Of Young Motor Car Industry

These four former Haynes employees look far from relics themselves as they gather to admire a 1918 vintage automobile they helped build and assemble.

Central Press Assn. KOKOMO, Ind. — The span from the dawning of the automobile age to its present dominance seems telescoped into a very short while as this central Indiana manufacturing city marks the centennial of the birth of Elwood Haynes, the man who started it all scarcely more than 63 years ago by building, in 1894, the first practical American gasoline-driven car.

Haynes, who made other great inventions, including a stainless steel, took his carefully conceived plans for a horseless carriage to the Apperson machine shop here. Edgar L. Apperson, now in his 80s lives in retirement in Phoenix, Ariz., his life having bridged the complete transition from horse-drawn vehicles to the automobile.

Until 1902, America's first car was the Haynes-Apperson. Then the company split in two. This was the motor capital of the country at the turn of what was to become

Dior Last Rites Carefully Staged

PARIS (AP) — Funeral services were held today for Christian Dior in a church scented with lily of the valley and filled with invited guests seated as carefully as for a fashion showing.

Thousands packed the Church of Ste. Honore d'Eylau, and thousands more filled the sidewalks for blocks outside.

Dior, 52, died last Thursday.

Inside the fashionable church young seamstresses from the Dior house filled the front pews on the left. The Dior mannequins, all in black, were in the center and France's other famous designers were on the right.

Corn Picker Accident Victim Improving

Harold Streitenberger, Route 4, who was given emergency treatment at Memorial Hospital following an accident at his farm last Saturday, said Wednesday he was feeling much better and considers himself fortunate to not have lost his hand.

Streitenberger's hand was cut when his glove was caught in a corn picker Saturday morning. He was treated and released following the accident.

West Virginia, Too

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — State pride was wounded by the advertisement of an industrial research firm that told of the firm's success in building up tourist and business trade in Honduras.

That was all right, but the "ad" writer had to add that the company had been similarly successful in "such out-of-the-way places as West Virginia."

the automobile century, but Detroit finally grasped the lead and the two pioneer manufacturers passed from the scene in the late '20s. Before their demise, however, both concerns produced cars which were as far a cry from the first horseless carriage as are the cars of today from their proudest models.

Spencer Huffman, one of the nation's leading authorities on old model cars and head of the Old Model Car Club, has located 71 Haynes and Appersons still in active operation throughout the country.

THE CONSIDERABLE size of the companies in their hey-day is evident from the fact that 450 former employees returned here from their present residences in seven states and 25 Indiana cities to inaugurate the Haynes centennial with a reunion in October.

The original Haynes creation now reposes in the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D. C. Its inventor declared his independence from horse-drawn vehicles on July 4, 1894, when his car chugged seven miles at hour along a stretch of the Pumpkinville pike, which still may be visited here.

This forerunner of today's passenger car power plants developing up to 300-horsepower was a rugged, little two-cycle marine gasoline engine of less than one horsepower which had been decided upon after discarding electricity as a power source because the lightest battery obtainable weighed over 1,200 pounds, and rejecting steam as too hazardous.

AS WITH many inventions, there were other inventors hard at work at the same time as Haynes, including Charles Duryea, who also became a pioneer auto builder. Haynes himself had heard rumors that Europeans were experimenting with power-driven vehicles.

There was nothing accidental about his achievement, however, because he set out deliberately to create exactly the car he built, after concluding that "the great trouble with the horse was his lack of endurance, and this became more apparent when he was driven day after day."

As supervisor of construction for the first natural gas pipeline into Chicago, he found the horse inadequate for long jaunts up and down the line, and concluded that "there must be a better way."

After the initial ride, Haynes turned the car around and proudly drove into Kokomo. He lost no time in hanging up a series of "firsts" which got the auto off to a fast start.

WITHIN a few days he precipitated the first automobile accident, when a horse shied and a farmer landed in the ditch with his load of tomatoes. Haynes was relieved to find the "other driver" unhurt, and promptly settled for the damages then and there.

In 1905, he shipped his car to the old Englewood railroad station in Chicago, and almost immediately received the first traffic ticket when he drove onto Michigan Ave. The police man said there was no provision for such a vehicle on the boulevard.

His 1,000-mile motor trip motor trip from Chicago to New York City in 1899 captured international attention, and the horseless carriage had arrived. Haynes lived here until 1925, long enough to see the tremendous automobile industry beginning to dominate the industrial world.

Door Opened to Associate Members

Hospital Bond Issue And Levy Proposals Endorsed by Jaycees

The Washington C. H. Junior Chamber of Commerce took two important actions at its meeting Monday night: (1) endorsed the hospital bond issue and operating levy proposals and (2) opened the door of the organization to associate members.

Committee chairman for the Thursday night's Halloween extravaganza also were named, support of the "attack on traffic accidents" was approved and a discussion of juvenile delinquency problems was held to round out one of the busiest sessions the Jaycees have had in some time.

There was very little discussion of either the proposal to issue to $780,000 in bonds to expand Memorial Hospital or of the proposal for a levy of .65 of a mill to meet its current expenses before they both were given overwhelming endorsement.

IN OPENING the door to associate members, the Jaycees made it possible for anyone 18 years old or older to participate in their organization's community betterment program. The only restriction is that associate members have no vote on the Jaycees proposals. Members of active members is within the 21-35-year-old age bracket.

The discussion of juvenile delinquency was led by Ray Anderson, who outlined some of the problems and some of the possible solutions.

In backing the "attack on traffic accidents," the Jaycees laid plans to put a wrecked car in some prominent place in the city where it would remain as visual evidence of traffic danger. Neither the time nor the place for the grim exhibit was set, but indications are that it will not be long before the horrible example will be set up.

For the Halloween extravaganza, Bill Hastings was named the parade marshal; Dick Arnett was placed in charge of the judging; Jack Cannon of the Jaycee float for the parade; Gene Sagar of the treats to be given to the kiddies and Dick Willis the pie-eating contest.

Durable Fish Given Freedom

PONTELAND, England (AP) — A 2-pound fish which survived a 270-mile automobile trip and 17 hours out of water was rewarded with its liberty today.

George Clay, an engineer, caught the fish, a tench, on a weekend fishing trip in Worcestershire. The angler wrapped his catch in a dry newspaper, put it in the trunk of his car, drove home and left it overnight in his garage.

Clay relieved the fish Monday, slapped it on a kitchen table and said to his wife, "let's have him fried." As Mrs. Clay poised her knife, the tench wriggled. Later he swam briskly around the bathtub.

Clay turned the fish loose in a nearby lake.

Month's Bond Sales $61,441 for County

Ohio sales of Series E and H U. S. savings bonds for September were the highest for that month since 1948.

Sales of these two savings bonds exceeded 23 million dollars for a gain of 27 per cent over September 1956 as compared to a national gain of 8 per cent.

September sales in Fayette County totaled $61,441.

In commenting on the sales R. H. Olinger, Chairman of the county Savings Bonds Committee stated, "Continuing high sales of Savings Bonds in Ohio reflect not only the growing industrial might of our state but also that the people who work in factories, offices and retail concerns have accepted the automatic payroll savings plan as a sure, steady way to accumulate large savings. In Ohio alone the people hold more than 4 billions in all series of Savings Bonds."

Small Reward Indeed For Such a Headache

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Caesar a large boxer, got his picture in the paper — and a kingsized headache.

Spotting a piece of metal in a vacant lot, the dog stuck his head in the hole in the center. He couldn't get out. There he stayed all night.

A welder finally released Caesar, after wrapping him in a wet sheet of asbestos to keep the dog from being burned by the blow torch.

Its the Statehouse

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — An out-of-state visitor asked several persons for directions to the capitol. She was sent to a theater, a newspaper and a restaurant, all of which had the word capitol in their names. She finally located, unaided, the building known locally as the Statehouse since 1694.

Inventor's Home Once Capital Of Young Motor Car Industry

These four former Haynes employees look far from relics themselves as they gather to admire a 1918 vintage automobile they helped build and assemble.

KOKOMO, Ind. — The span from the dawning of the automobile age to its present dominance seems telescoped into a very short while as this central Indiana manufacturing city marks the centennial of the birth of Elwood Haynes, the man who started it all scarcely more than 63 years ago by building, in 1894, the first practical American gasoline-driven car.

Haynes, who made other great inventions, including stainless steel, took his carefully conceived plans for a horseless carriage to the Apperson machine shop here. Edgar L. Apperson, now in his 50s lives in retirement in Phoenix, Ariz., his life having bridged the complete transition from horse-drawn vehicles to the automobile.

Until 1902, America's first car was the Haynes-Apperson. Then the company split in two. This was the motor capital of the country at the turn of what was to become the automobile century, but Detroit finally grasped the lead and the two pioneer manufacturers passed from the scene in the late '20s. Before their demise, however, both concerns produced cars which were as far a cry from the first horseless carriage as are the cars of today from their proudest models.

Spencer Huffman, one of the nation's leading authorities on old model cars and head of the celebration, has located 71 Haynes and Appersons still in active operation throughout the country.

THE CONSIDERABLE size of the companies in their hey-day is evident from the fact that 450 former employees returned here from their present residences in seven states and 25 Indiana cities to inaugurate the Haynes centennial with a reunion in October.

The original Haynes creation now resides in the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D. C. Its inventor declared his independence from horse-drawn vehicles on July 4, 1894, when his car chugged seven miles at hour along a stretch of the Pumpkinville pike, which still may be visited here.

This forerunner of today's passenger car power plants developing up to 300-horsepower was a rugged, little two-cycle marine gasoline engine of less than one horsepower which had been decided upon after discarding electricity as a power source because the lightest battery obtainable weighed over 1,200 pounds, and rejecting steam as too hazardous.

AS WITH many inventions, there were other inventors hard at work at the same time as Haynes, including Charles Duryea, who also became a pioneer auto builder. Haynes himself had heard rumors that Europeans were experimenting with power-driven vehicles.

There was nothing accidental about his achievement, however, because he set out deliberately to create exactly the car he built, after concluding that "the great trouble with the horse was his lack of endurance, and this became more apparent when he was driven day after day."

As supervisor of construction for the first natural gas pipeline into Chicago, he found the horse inadequate for long jaunts up and down the line, and concluded that "there must be a better way."

After the initial ride, Haynes turned the car around and proudly drove into Kokomo. He lost no time in hanging up a series of "firsts" which got the auto off to a fast start.

WITHIN a few days he precipitated the first automobile accident, when a horse shied and a farmer landed in the ditch with his load of tomatoes. Haynes was relieved to find the "other driver" unhurt, and promptly settled for the damages then and there.

In 1905, he shipped his car to the old Englewood railroad station in Chicago, and almost immediately received the first traffic ticket when he drove onto Michigan Ave. The police man said there was no provision for such a vehicle on the boulevard.

His 1,000-mile motor trip motor trip from Chicago to New York City in 1899 captured international attention, and the horseless carriage had arrived. Haynes lived here until 1925, long enough to see the tremendous automobile industry beginning to dominate the industrial world.

West Virginia, Too

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — State pride was wounded by the advertisement of an industrial research firm that told of the firm's success in building up tourist and business trade in Honduras.

Stock Market Warning of Levelling-Off

Message Is Noted
Coming to Business
Since Middle of July

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market has been telling us since mid July that businessmen are expecting a levelling off or mild retreat from the long business boom.

Stock traders felt that if such a dip in business activity and earnings was in the works, then most stocks were over priced.

They have a number of items in today's news to bear out their fears that bullish times may be ending for a while.

The question today is whether the correction in stock prices since mid July has gone far enough—has fully discounted in advance the business recession which may or may not be aborning.

Some think the market has over discounted the chances of a recession—that the big snapback last Wednesday marked the end of the price drop.

Since the stock exchange is an auction market in which some want to buy and some want to sell, there are many who feel just the opposite. They hold that the stock price decline has still more distance to go before prices accurately mirror the chances of business being as good and earnings as high or higher next year.

Predictions about business are only a little more trustworthy than those about horse races. But there are a stick of them today to show what the Wall Street bears have been having in mind.

One hundred top industrial leaders have advised the Department of Commerce that they suspect a mild recession is starting and they expect it to last until the middle of next year at least.

The National Assn. of Purchasing Agents says its members are turning even more cautious now because new orders aren't coming at the rate they had hoped for.

Steel leaders are revising their estimates of fall and winter business. Some now feel that their output will stay about where it is now at around 80 per cent of capacity. A few weeks back the same ones were talking about a fall snapback that would bring production up to maybe 90 per cent of capacity.

A survey of 202 business and university economists by F. W. Dodge Corp. shows most of them looking for less industrial production in the months ahead but expecting prices to go right on rising.

Surveys of the expansion plans of industry show that more companies are now saying that they will spend less next year than this for new plants and equipment.

Even some Federal Reserve Board executives are saying that the boom seems to be ending.

It is these things that businessmen and government officials are saying now that the stock traders began worrying about last summer. They also noted that earnings statements, while still pleasant reading, aren't showing the same rising trend they have in previous years.

Overseas Holiday Mail Regulations Are Listed

The first harbingers of the holiday season came sprinkling down Tuesday with the issuance by Postmaster Clark Wickensimer of instructions for mailing Christmas packages to military personnel overseas.

No guarantee of on-time delivery can be made unless the packages are mailed on schedule, Wickensimer said.

For surface mails, parcels should be sent from Nov. 1 through 20, and for airmail, the dates are Dec. 1 through 10.

"The importance of mailing Christmas parcels during the designated periods cannot be emphasized too strongly," Wickensimer said. "The earlier, the better."

ARMED FORCES overseas personnel include also the families of military personnel and authorized U. S. citizens employed overseas who receive their mail through an APO number.

The maximum weight for surface mail parcels is 70 pounds, except that a 50-pound limitation applies to certain overseas destinations.

Airmail packages are limited to two pounds each. Size of parcels is also limited. Certain articles are prohibited.

Further information may be obtained from the Washington C. H. post office, Wickensimer said.

'Human Torch' Story Said False

ELIZABETH, N. J. (AP)—Police described as untrue the story of a 14-year-old boy who told them that three youths doused him with kerosene and lit it.

Detective Frederick Schlauch, who questioned the boy later, said the youth, James Kulpa is in fair condition at Alexian Brothers Hospital with second degree burns of the thighs and legs.

Slauch quoted the boy as saying he told a different story to police after the incident Sunday because he did not want his parents to punish him.

No One-Sided View Shown In This Poll

The average poll of public opinion is by no means a positive index as to a general public view of any given situation. However most people hear or read about them with considerable interest.

Much depends upon how a poll is taken as to its accuracy in obtaining a true picture of opinion trends. Sometimes polls have been "loaded" in certain areas for propaganda purposes and therefore are not of sound value. In other cases, over a broad enough area, they may provide a reasonably sound estimate of public thinking on any particular issue.

However the Wall Street Journal in New York is reported to have made a limited attempt at such a poll in seeking to determine party preference of some of the Negro vote. However the poll was covering too small a number to be a certainty as to reflection of the real sentiment over any broad scope of territory.

It was said that representatives of the financial publication interviewed approximately 400 Negroes in 17 northern and western cities where Negro ballots might be a real factor in national elections.

There was a sampling of these Negro voters in all economic and social levels, including those newly off trains from the Deep South.

Asked if they would vote for a Republican or Democratic presidential candidate if the election were held at this time, 163 picked the GOP, while 140 said they'd stick with a Democrat. The remainder had various shades of opinion.

However, when it came to the congressional elections, which are closer at hand, they were not at all consistent. There were fewer voters who had strong ideas about '58, but of those who did, 70 expect to vote for a Republican, while 88 think they'll be in the Democratic column.

What deductions can be drawn from this sampling of public opinion? Namely that the apparent popularity President Eisenhower now enjoys with Negro voters will not be automatically transformed into Republican votes, and that the race issue as such can conceivably backfire on any politician, of either of the two major parties who may be foolish enough to use such issue for his own particular purpose.

Ladies Do Not Prefer Blondes

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't read this mail:

That gentlemen may prefer blondes, but the ladies themselves don't. In a world survey Willard Gidwitz, president of Helene Curtis Co., found that chestnut brown is the most popular hair shade; nine out of ten women who dye their tresses, dye them brown.

That the longest word you can type out on one line of letters of a standard typewriter is—"Typewriter."

That it was Friedrich Karl Otto Dibelius who observed, "power is like sea water. The more one drinks of it, the thirstier one gets."

Helping the Tax Avoiders

By George Sokolsky

The International Industrial Development Conference which took place in San Francisco was some kind of a trade promotion - export capital scheme designed by Time - Life International, a couple of magazines, and by the Stanford Research Institute which is described as a private consulting organization.

It is said that as many as 500 industrialists attended this meeting. Early announcements indicated that the former Nazi munitions-maker, Krupp, would attend, but thus far I have not seen his name.

The most important speech was that delivered by Vice President Richard Nixon who dealt with many subjects until he came to page eight of the mimeographed copy in which he reached something that seems most unusual for him, namely, the utilization of American private capital in foreign countries, particularly such as are tax havens.

I quote a paragraph which requires considerable interpretation and study if it is a new fiscal policy:

"The Congress should also consider the feasibility of passing a tax reform similar to one adopted by the United Kingdom a few months ago. This would defer U. S. taxes on income and profits earned entirely abroad until they are actually paid in dividends to the stockholder or the parent company."

It would give American overseas traders and investors the same encouragement some of them now seek by incorporating abroad. It would immediately increase the funds available to such companies for additional foreign investment, yet in the long run the U. S. Treasury and foreign treasuries would also gain by the tax on income from a larger investment base.

Great Britain can only sustain her economy on foreign trade. This is also true of Japan and of West Germany. They are required by their lack of raw materials, their population surplus, and their need to import raw materials and foodstuffs to engage heavily in foreign trade.

To achieve this end, they encourage cartels, they subsidize industrial and commercial enterprise, they create tax havens, and they orient their foreign policy toward benefiting foreign trade.

Is the same true about the United States? There is no evidence to that effect. The evidence shows that our foreign trade, apart from government subsidized exports of goods and money, amounts to a very small fraction of our national income. Of course, there are some companies, since the beginning of World War II, which have benefited from foreign trade, but none of these industries have done as much in the foreign as in the domestic field.

What Vice President Nixon proposes is that American capital, exported abroad and remaining abroad as to principal and profit, should not be taxed by the United States, until the profits are brought back to this country. This idea could stimulate foreign trade; it could also stimulate a flight of capital to a tax haven.

I find nothing in the speech which protects the United States from such a flight of capital to a tax haven or which protects the American who stays at home and invests his money and labor in the United States and who pays his taxes honestly and regularly.

Actually, this exported American capital could be used as unfair competition against the tax-paying American and against highly-taxed and high-wages American labor. And the tax-haven operator should be safeguarded by such law as Vice President Nixon or whoever incubated this idea, proposes.

Also how does this affect the foreigner or tax haven American who sets up outside of the United States with tax-free American dollars, manufactures goods which he imports into the United States but leaves the capital and the profits from such American sales abroad?

Under this plan, he could undersell his own American company, eventually produce a tax loss here, but taking a profit in his foreign subsidiaries, and paying taxes nowhere, or a very small tax.

As a matter of fact, the American low-priced automobile is already outpriced in competition with imported automobiles made by American-owned companies abroad.

We are subsidizing the industrialization of many weak and backward countries. These subsidies come out of taxes. These

Serenity in Home Safeguards Health

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN

A peaceful home life is a healthful one. I'd like to help you keep your home both peaceful and healthy.

When you are emotionally upset, your health is bound to suffer. Ulcers, heart trouble, in fact most ailments, are aggravated by emotional outbursts.

The easiest way to avoid such outbursts of course, is to keep your home life as serene as possible. In other words, don't quarrel with your spouse and try to keep him from quarreling with you.

Sound impossible? Well, it can be done. And here's one way to go it:

The main thing is to keep your temper and remain quiet when your spouse sounds off at you about something which displeases him, or her (wives start arguments, too—sometimes).

Be a doormat, if you have to, but resist the temptation to defend yourself. The meek, remember, shall inherit the earth. And there's no better time to be meek than when it will help avoid a domestic argument.

Perhaps you don't deserve the wrath of your spouse, but take it anyway. On the other hand, maybe you should be chided. If that's the case, a tongue-lashing may do you some good.

If both husband and wife follow my advice, however, there can't be any arguments. Of course, this is just dreaming and I realize it.

Gentleness coupled with kindness will beat any argument.

A full-fledged tantrum, however, might be something else again. Adults, like children, sometimes throw a tantrum in order to get what they want.

When this happens, just walk away and leave the boisterous one by himself. A tantrum just isn't worthwhile when there is no audience around to appreciate the display.

If there are a great many tantrums, psychiatric help may be indicated. The same holds true for the more quiet type of argument. A person who becomes angered with great frequency may need the help of a doctor.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

H. M.: Is rabbit fever carried only by rabbits?

Answer: Tularemia or rabbit fever may be carried by animals other than rabbits. Squirrels, woodchucks, foxes and coyotes have been known to carry the disease.

Query from Airplane

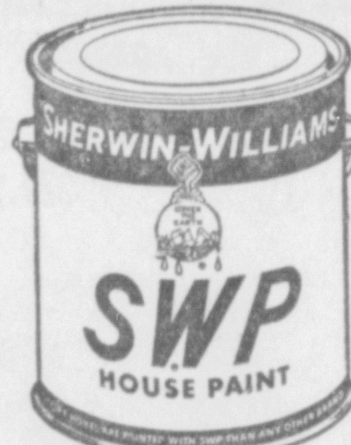

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (AP)—City Patrolman Larry Eversull has often been asked for directions—but never before from an airplane.

The light plane landed on a city street Monday evening near Eversull's patrol car and taxied over. The unidentified pilot leaned out and yelled he was "going to Montana" and where was the nearest airport.

The stunned policeman told him and the pilot took off.

"I should have given him a ticket," Eversull recalled too late.

OHIO BELL

The Nation Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—What is this country going to call its satellite, once it launches one?

Sputnik II? No, somehow that doesn't quite ring the bell. Besides, it may be outmoded by the time we get our little ball up in the air.

How about "Kintups"? That's Sputnik spelled backward.

No? Then what do you suggest? It's a problem to furrow the most wrinkled brows of the advertising experts on New York's Madison Ave., to say nothing of the equally crinkled brows of the phrase coiners in the Pentagon and elsewhere on the government payroll.

We're sort of half-way committed to the name "Vanguard," since that's the name of the U.S. satellite project. But the steam went out of that one long ago. "Vanguard" means that you're head of the other guy, and Sputnik gives the laugh to that idea daily—even if it has lost its beep.

But nobody ever calls anything by its right name in this country anyway. The Army's Vertol helicopter was promptly, and forever, rechristened "The Flying Banana." There probably is a correct name for a certain recoilless weapon which is handy against tanks, but nobody would know it by any other name than bazooka.

So Vanguard probably was doomed even before it became obsolete. The problem is to find a jaunty substitute which gives a Bronx cheer to the Russians. Somehow none of the suggestions which crop up in cocktail party conversations makes the cookie crumble, as some people may still be saying on Madison Ave.

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (AP)—Before employees knew what had happened Monday, an unidentified man stepped into a doughnut store, placed $46 on the counter commenting, "I stole this here," then quickly slipped out.

Jack Renison, store owner, said he recalled the cash register had been opened and rifled by a thief about six years ago.

Nope. You can hear the groans already, from here to Moscow. We could go back to the old myths. But with Thor, Jupiter and the other rockets already whooshing off, that field has been pretty thoroughly ploughed too.

Maybe the best idea would be to let the men in uniform decide on a satellite name. They have a flair for it. Remember the bombers of World War II: "Wabash Choo-Choo," "Little Eva," "Ding-Dong Daddy." To say nothing of those which caused some generals to blush and turn away.

chuckled the judge.

"You don't know the half of it,"

Mike said grimly. "Anywhere I go people make fun of me. They make jokes about my wife, my kids. It's driving me nuts."

IN SAN ANTONIO a group of retired Army officers organized a recreational center they call "The Henpecked Club." Into its quarters stormed an irate, 200-pound wife one evening, swept the poker chips onto the floor and pulled an ex-general out by the ear, screaming, "How dare you join a club with a revolting name like this? You're not henpecked!"

At the Chez Paree in Chicago, an opulent guest at a ringside table offered Joe E. Lewis a bunch of imported grapes. "No, siree," said Lewis haughtily. "You don't catch me taking my wine in pills!"

No One-Sided View Shown In This Poll

The average poll of public opinion is by no means a positive index as to a general public view of any given situation. However most people hear or read about them with considerable interest.

Much depends upon how a poll is taken as to its accuracy in obtaining a true picture of opinion trends. Sometimes polls have been "loaded" in certain areas for propaganda purposes and therefore are not of sound value. In other cases, over a broad enough area, they may provide a reasonably sound estimate of public thinking on any particular issue.

However the Wall Street Journal in New York is reported to have made a limited attempt at such a poll in seeking to determine party preference of some of the Negro vote. However the poll was covering too small a number to be a certainty as to reflection of the real sentiment over any broad scope of territory.

It was said that representatives of the financial publication interviewed approximately 400 Negroes in 17 northern and western cities where Negro ballots might be a real factor in national elections.

There was a sampling of these Negro voters in all economic and social levels, including those newly off trains from the Deep South.

Asked if they would vote for a Republican or Democratic presidential candidate if the election were held at this time, 163 picked the GOP, while 140 said they'd stick with a Democrat. The remainder had various shades of opinion.

However, when it came to the congressional elections, which are closer at hand, they were not at all consistent. There were fewer voters who had strong ideas about '58, but of those who did, 70 expect to vote for a Republican, while 88 think they'll be in the Democratic column.

What deductions can be drawn from this sampling of public opinion? Namely that the apparent popularity President Eisenhower now enjoys with Negro voters will not be automatically transformed into Republican votes, and that the race issue as such can conceivably backfire on any politician, of either of the two major parties who may be foolish enough to use such issue for his own particular purpose.

Helping the Tax Avoiders

By George Sokolsky

The International Industrial Development Conference which took place in San Francisco was some kind of a trade promotion - export capital scheme designed by Time - Life International, a couple of magazines, and by the Stanford Research Institute which is described as a private consulting organization.

It is said that as many as 500 industrialists attended this meeting. Early announcements indicated that the former Nazi munitions-maker, Krupp, would attend, but thus far I have not seen his name.

The most important speech was that delivered by Vice President Richard Nixon who dealt with many subjects until he came to page eight of the mimeographed copy in which he reached something that seems most unusual for him, namely, the utilization of American private capital in foreign countries, particularly such as are tax havens.

I quote a paragraph which requires considerable interpretation and study if it is a new fiscal policy:

"The Congress should also consider the feasibility of passing a tax reform similar to one adopted by the United Kingdom a few months ago. This would defer U. S. taxes on income and profits earned entirely abroad until they are actually paid in dividends to the stockholder or the parent company.

It would give American overseas traders and investors the same encouragement some of them now seek by incorporating abroad. It would immediately increase the funds available to such companies for additional foreign investment, yet in the long run the U. S. Treasury and foreign treasuries would also gain by the tax on income from a larger investment base."

Great Britain can only sustain her economy on foreign trade. This is also true of Japan and of West Germany. They are required by their lack of raw materials, their population surplus, and their need to import raw materials and foodstuffs to engage heavily in foreign trade.

To achieve this end, they encourage cartels, they subsidize industrial and commercial enterprise, they create tax havens, and they orient their foreign policy toward benefiting foreign trade.

Is the same true about the United States? There is no evidence to that effect. The evidence shows that our foreign trade, apart from government subsidized exports of goods and money, amounts to a very small fraction of our national income. Of course, there are some companies, since the beginning of World War II, which have benefited from foreign trade, but none of these industries have done as much in the foreign as in the domestic field.

What Vice President Nixon proposes is that American capital, exported abroad and remaining abroad as to principal and profit, should not be taxed by the United States, until the profits are brought back to this country. This idea could stimulate foreign trade; it could also stimulate a flight of capital to a tax haven.

I find nothing in the speech which protects the United States from such a flight of capital to a tax haven or which protects the American who stays at home and invests his money and labor in the United States and who pays his taxes honestly and regularly.

Actually, this exported American capital could be used as unfair competition against the tax-paying American and against highly-taxed and high-wages American labor. And the tax-haven operator should be safeguarded by such law as Vice President Nixon or whoever incubated this idea, proposes.

Also how does this affect the foreigner or tax haven American who sets up outside of the United States with tax-free American dollars, manufactures goods which he imports into the United States but leaves the capital and the profits from such American sales abroad?

Under this plan, he could undersell his own American company, eventually produce a tax loss here, but taking a profit in his foreign subsidiaries, and paying taxes nowhere, or a very small tax.

As a matter of fact, the American low-priced automobile is already outpriced in competition with imported automobiles made by American-owned companies abroad.

We are subsidizing the industrialization of many weak and backward countries. These subsidies come out of taxes. These

Serenity in Home Safeguards Health

Round about Fayette County

By B. E. KELLEY

Although Willard Kirk, thrice the corn king of the world as a result of his wonderful corn exhibited at the International Stock and Grain Show in Chicago, is barred from participating in the show again until 1959, Fayette County grain still has more than an even chance of winning top honors at the forthcoming show.

I refer to some exceptionally fine corn grown by Gilbert Coll, who for years has been among the leading corn breeders of the nation, and who last year stood in fifth place.

When Kirk won his first championship at Chicago, Col's corn took second place, and a number of years ago his white corn took first in the utility class.

Gilbert, who also is postmaster of Jeffersonville, has been going through his corn, which is unusually good this year, hand-picking choice ears for his exhibit.

His corn is similar to that grown by Willard, which three times has been pronounced the best samples in the world. It is Hybrid WF938-11.

Coll started selecting his corn last week, then went to Los Angeles, Calif., and upon his return will complete the work.

Inasmuch as Indiana's corn crop is not up to standard this year, and corn will not be at its peak, the Indiana growers, as well as the Illinois growers may find Gilbert's corn is ahead of them, and that once more a Fayette Countian has become corn king of the world.

Many years ago H. W. Bussert, who then lived on the Frank M. Kennedy farm, State Rd., was declared world champion for the best single ear exhibited in the Chicago show.

Fayette County has long been recognized as the foremost county in Ohio in the production of highest quality corn, and winners here and in the larger shows have proven beyond question that the corn breeders of the county know their corn and can pick the winning ears.

My prediction is that if Gilbert Coll, the only one I know who is to exhibit Fayette County corn at the big show in Chicago in November, does not carry off first honors, his corn is going to be given one of the top places in the show.

IRON ORE SHIPMENTS

Each year sizeable shipments of iron ore, originating in Minnesota, and hauled across the great lakes in huge ore-carrying boats, passes through Washington C. H. enroute to the furnaces in Jackson, Portsmouth and Ironton.

A few years ago while in Duluth, Minn., I watched huge ore carriers receive their 10,000 tons of ore in a very short time, and ore trains from the big iron mines 40 miles distant, were running on 20-minute schedules from pit to docks.

Last month the Great Lakes fleet hauled 11,906,303 gross tons of ore, and the season's tonnage up to Oct. 1, this year, was 59,502,127 tons or 14,879 tons more than the corresponding time in 1956.

Millions of tons of the ore reach Ohio ports on Lake Erie, and are distributed to the many steel mills throughout the state.

OLD TIME POLICEMEN

It has not been more than a quarter of a century since most policemen wore regulation uniforms with large brass buttons down the front of the coat, and helmets instead of caps or hats.

Most of you older folks will recall those days in Washington C. H., about the time Joe Kerrigan was chief, and for years prior to that.

The man who told me the following amusing story is not certain whether it occurred here or elsewhere, but it is worth repeating.

One day while a policeman was patrolling his beat, swinging his club and keeping his eyes open for trouble, he saw a badly intoxicated man stumbling toward him, with his eyes on the sidewalk as if to make sure no obstructions were there.

The policeman stopped and the intoxicated man finally stumbled headlong against the immovable policeman.

In a dazed condition the man raised his eyes until they rested on the lower brass button of the officer's coat, and started pointing to each button and counting slowly as his eyes moved upward.

"One, two, three, four, five," and finally raising his eyes to the officer's face he said: "well, hello here, Mr. Policeman!"

SHOCK CORN SCARCE

For many years the amount of corn cut and placed in the shock has been growing less and less, until now it is a rarity to see an entire field of corn in the shock.

Recently in a 32-mile trip in the county, I saw only three fields in which part of the corn had been cut and placed in the shock, not an entire field was included in the three "patches" that had been cut.

I have noticed many fields sown to wheat, where the stalks and fodder have been cut to pieces and remain on the ground, a wonderful fertilizer and soil conditioner.

Some of the older farmers who used to husk corn from the shock, recall that a custom which apparently came into this county during the early days, and was continued until about 50 years ago, was to bind the fodder into sizeable bundles, so it could be easily handled in hauling on sleds and wagons, to feed cattle and horses.

These bundles were some 14 to 18 inches in diameter, and when hickory sprouts or bushes were abundant, the slender hickory bushes were cut, and split into "hickory withes" for binding the fodder.

Stalks which were damp, or still retained considerable sap, also were used in binding the bundles.

The method of handling the fodder was finally regarded as poor practice and discontinued.

Several times while enroute to or from the south by train, I have noticed a wayside station in the mountains of Tennessee called "Hickory Withe".

May-December Marriages Become Common in Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD — Bing Crosby's wedding to a girl the same age as one of his sons follows the trend in May-December marriages in Hollywood. And, perhaps surprisingly, such marriages have had a good average in a town where divorce is sometimes considered a way of life.

There is 30 years' difference between Bing and his bride, Kathy Grant. Far from being a handicap, the gap is considered an advantage by some observers of the filmland scene. Take a look at the record.

Many of Hollywood's mature leading men have chosen wives decades younger than themselves. And several female stars have married older men in recent years. It's true that such alliances are often second, third or fourth marriages. But they have stuck where others failed.

William Powell set the pattern in 1940. He chose as his third wife an MGM starlet, Diana Lewis. He was 47; she could barely vote. Hollywood gave the marriage six months. The Powells are still happily wed.

Humphrey Bogart, 45, had a headline romance with his young leading lady, Lauren Bacall, 21. No one gave her a chance to accomplish what three other women had failed to do — tame Bogart. But she did it, and his last decade was the happiest of his life.

Rudy Vallee was another three-time loser. In 1949, he married a University of California coed, Eleanor Norris. Though he was 29 years older, their marriage has remained constant.

Twice-divorced Cary Grant was another star who fell in love with his leading lady, Betsy Drake. When they married, he was 46, she was 26. They are one of the town's most devoted couples.

Saddened by the death of his first wife, Fred MacMurray found companionship with June Haver. They married when he was 45 and she was 28.

Older women were among Clark Gable's first four wives. As his fifth, he chose Kay Spreckels, 20 years his junior. Robert Taylor married Ursula Theiss, a dozen years younger than he, and Gregory Peck, at 39, wed a 22-year-old French girl, Veronique Passanie.

Among the female stars, Elizabeth Taylor wed showman Mike Todd, a grandfather with a son older than luscious Liz. Jennifer Jones appears to be happy with her older husband, producer David Selznick.

FAYETTE COUNTY MIAMI TRACE VOTERS

Why NEW Miami Trace School Board Members Are Needed!

For several years members of the present board have promised savings and economy, claiming that they were and could continue to operate with the money raised by ten Mills of taxation.

From the school year 1955-56 to the school year 1956-57 the enrollment in Miami Trace school district increased only 9.7%

BUT, - Total Administration costs went up	36%
Cafeteria costs went up	55%
Per pupil expenditure went up	15%
even the County Sup'ts. office costs went up	36%

Where is the good school management which was promised?

Where is the more economical operation which was promised?

The old Miami Trace board has requested an INCREASE of 67% in school taxes for next year.

Let's get back to realistic thinking.

Is dwindling farm income to mean anything?

Does your income justify voting 20% more tax by the additional 2 mill levy?

Have the children and the tax-payers been forgotten in Rural Fayette County?

If elected we promise ACTUAL ECONOMY and more careful expenditure of your tax money in order to have better educational opportunities for our children.

Actor To Be Target Of Mike Wallace

NEW YORK — Kirk Douglas believes that "every once in a while you have to stick your neck out."

On Saturday evening he appears on "The Mike Wallace Interview" (ABC - TV, 10 p.m. EST), thus becoming the first Hollywood star of the first magnitude to undergo Wallace's special brand of searing cross-examination.

The interview was filmed recently in Munich, Germany, where Douglas was making his new movie, "The Viking."

Douglas said the interview was completely impromptu and that Wallace "surprised me a few times. He plays a little rough, so I was a little rough too. I called him a snob—and I hope he didn't cut that out of the film."

"Frankly, I liked Mike better after the interview than before it. He seems able to take it as well as dish it out. It's true that some of his questions are unfair, but I think I see why he does that. He wants to throw you off balance."

"I think Wallace fulfills a worthwhile purpose. People are interested in people and Wallace tries to get to the truth about a person."

Round about Fayette County

By B. E. KELLEY

Although Willard Kirk, thrice the corn king of the world as a result of his wonderful corn exhibited at the International Stock and Grain Show in Chicago, is barred from participating in the show again until 1959, Fayette County grain still has more than an even chance of winning top honors at the forthcoming show.

I refer to some exceptionally fine corn grown by Gilbert Coll, who for years has been among the leading corn breeders of the nation, and who last year stood in fifth place.

When Kirk won his first championship at Chicago, Col's corn took second place, and a number of years ago his white corn took first in the utility class.

Gilbert, who also is postmaster of Jeffersonville, has been going through his corn, which is unusually good this year, hand-picking choice ears for his exhibit.

His corn is similar to that grown by Willard, which three times has been pronounced the best samples in the world. It is Hybrid WFX38-11.

Coll started selecting his corn last week, then went to Los Angeles, Calif., and upon his return will complete the work.

Inasmuch as Indiana's corn crop is not up to standard this year, and corn will not be at its peak, the Indiana growers may find Gilbert's corn is ahead of them, and that once more a Fayette Countyman has become corn king of the world.

Many years ago H. W. Bussert, who then lived on the Frank M. Kennedy farm, State Rd., was declared world champion for the best single ear exhibited in the Chicago show.

Fayette County has long been recognized as the foremost county in Ohio in the production of highest quality corn, and winnings here and in the larger shows have proven beyond question that the corn breeders of the county know their corn and can pick the winning ears.

My prediction is that if Gilbert Coll, the only one I know who is to exhibit Fayette County corn at the big show in Chicago in November, does not carry off first honors, his corn is going to be given one of the top places in the show.

IRON ORE SHIPMENTS

Each year sizeable shipments of iron ore, originating in Minnesota, and hauled across the great lakes in huge ore-carrying boats, passes through Washington C. H. enroute to the furnaces in Jackson, Portsmouth and Ironton.

A few years ago while in Duluth, Minn., I watched huge ore carriers receive their 10,000 tons of ore in a very short time, and ore trains from the big iron mines 40 miles distant, were running on 20-minute schedules from pit to docks.

Last month the Great Lakes fleet hauled 11,906,303 gross tons of ore, and the season's tonnage up to Oct. 1, this year, was 69,502,127 tons or 14,879 tons more than the corresponding time in 1956.

Millions of tons of the ore reach Ohio ports on Lake Erie, and are distributed to the many steel mills throughout the state.

OLD TIME POLICEMEN

It has not been more than a quarter of a century since most policemen wore regulation uniforms with large brass buttons down the front of the coat, and helmets instead of caps or hats.

Most of you older folks will recall those days in Washington C. H., about the time Joe Kerrigan was chief, and for years prior to that.

The man who told me the following amusing story is not certain whether it occurred here or elsewhere, but it is worth repeating.

One day while a policeman was patrolling his beat, swinging his club and keeping his eyes open for trouble, he saw a badly intoxicated man stumbling toward him, with his eyes on the sidewalk as if to make sure no obstructions were there.

The policeman stopped and the intoxicated man finally stumbled headlong against the immovable policeman.

In a dazed condition the man raised his eyes until they rested on the lower brass button of the officer's coat, and started pointing to each button and counting slowly as his eyes moved upward.

"One, two, three, four, five," and finally raising his eyes to the officer's face he said: "well, hello here, Mr. Policeman!"

SHOCK CORN SCARC

For many years the amount of corn cut and placed in the shock has been growing less and less, until now it is a rarity to see an entire field of corn in the shock.

Recently in a 32-mile trip in the county, I saw only three fields in which part of the corn had been cut and placed in the shock, not an entire field was included in the three "patches" that had been cut.

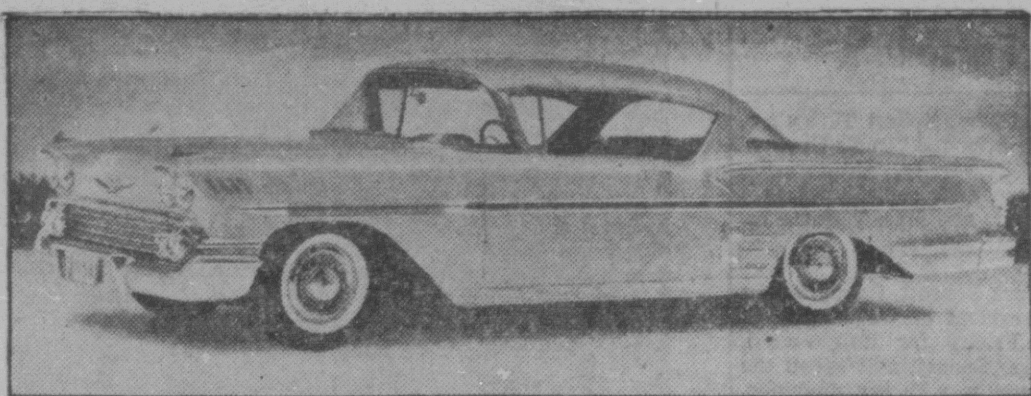

I have noticed many fields sown to wheat, where the stalks and fodder have been cut to pieces and remain on the ground, a wonderful fertilizer and soil conditioner.

Some of the older farmers who used to husk corn from the shock, recall that a custom which apparently came into this county during the early days, and was continued until about 50 years ago, was to bind the fodder into sizeable bundles, so it could be easily handled in hauling on sleds and wagons, to feed cattle and horses.

These bundles were some 14 to 18 inches in diameter, and when hickory sprouts or bushes were abundant, the slender hickory bushes were cut, and split into "hickory withes" for binding the fodder.

Stalks which were damp, or still retained considerable sap, also were used in binding the bundles. The method of handling the fodder was finally regarded as poor practice and discontinued.

"Mary Haworth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: The parents in our neighborhood have a serious problem, concerning which we would like your help. A boy of 11, of a much admired family, is luring younger boys astray, into furtive practise of sex misbehavior. He then threatens the small boys; and tells them if they tell their parents, he will return and beat them up.

This has come to light only in recent weeks, when some of the younger children, obviously disturbed, broke down and told their parents. Some of these children are as young as three years old. Even in his public play, the boy is seldom with boys his own age—usually with small children, tumbling on the grass with them and tickling them.

The boy's father is a doctor; and now is the time when he might help his son. Yet none of us has the heart to speak to the parents. Meanwhile the situation is a constant threat. Many of the mothers have been alerted.

Would we be meddling unwarrantedly if we told his parents? They are fine people, who are helpful neighbors to everyone, and nobody would want to hurt them. The boy goes to a private school; and it may be that a companion there is the source of his misconduct.

DEAR E.S.: The sensible substance of your letter, here condensed, establishes the fact that your outlook on children's behavior is wholesome.

In other words, your anxiety in this situation isn't a case of reading morbidity into a basically innocent pattern of misbehavior. On the contrary, I agree with you that there is cause to concern yourselves (as parents) about the 11-year-old's performance which is sick-minded.

Further, I feel it is positively necessary to inform the boy's parents of the neighborhood alarm that is spreading, as a result of their son's gross impropriety in relation to younger playmates.

True, it is a delicate matter to discuss in any case. But it must be discussed, as a matter of health insurance of children. The harm this boy is doing, in his currently neglected condition, could be indelibly damaging to himself and other small fry, if understanding adult help isn't supplied immediately.

The boy's misconduct is symptomatic of serious emotional disturbance, the nature of which a specialist should explore. And if his parents are blind to his urgent need of protective treatment, it is your duty, as guardians of your children's welfare, to bring the problem to their attention.

What to say? Or how to stage the conference? Well, I suggest that you form a volunteer committee of, say, three mothers, whose children are frightened and dismayed by the boy's aggressive behavior. A spokesman for this committee may ask permission of the boy's mother to call, to discuss with her a matter of grave importance to mothers of the neighborhood. Then the committee calls en masse, and the spokesman, after warm greetings, goes straight to the point.

As for example: "Mrs. Blank (or Minna), it is about your Johnnie. Of course we realize that in cases of this kind, understanding is the important thing, and getting specialist help with whatever is wrong. So we aren't thinking in terms of blame, or anything of that sort. But, the problem is—Johnnie has been misbehaving, very seriously, with little boys in the neighborhood. And threatening them. At least so the children tell us—"

And so on. Or maybe you would prefer to speak through a committee of fathers instead, organized to confer with Johnnie's doctor father.

Plumber Finds Rifle Handy Extra Equipment

FORT SCOTT, Kan. (AP) — Raymond Mason, a plumber, added a rifle to the tool kit he carried to a job at a farm home.

Working in tight quarters under the house, Mason saw a rattlesnake coiled on a foundation plate two feet away. He called to a fellow worker, who obtained a rifle from the farmer and passed it to Mason.

Mason fired. The snake leaped, falling just short of him. He shot it again.

Next day, Mason returned to the job, armed with a rifle of his own. He completed the job without seeing another snake.

Woman 'Came Up Hard Way' In Transportation Position

By JANE EADS
WASHINGTON (AP)—Dr. Beatrice Aitchison, one of the nation's few women transportation economists, says she "came up the hard way" to become the first woman in a top level policy position in the Postoffice Department.

She served 15 years as a career government employee before her appointment in 1953 as postoffice director of transportation research. She likes her job.

Specifically, Dr. Aitchison's task is finding better, cheaper and faster ways of moving mail between points in the United States.

"We want to get the mail home as fast as we can," she explained. "We have to move letters, packages and circulars to and from any place in the United States. This is the equivalent of being ready to jump any one of a billion and a half ways at any time."

About half the postmasters in the country are women. Many women deliver the mail often under great hardships and over hazardous routes.

"Women are tough," Dr. Aitchison says. "One working in an isolated area just retired after 37 years with not one hour of sick leave. Another uses a jeep mostly. When she can't, she uses her horse. Sometimes she has to walk."

She is Eva T. Crank of Hattie, Mo., whose route crosses four unbridged streams in Ozarks. During high water, cars and trucks line up and wait for her to come and measure the depth of the water with the horse. If it's only knee deep on the horse cars can cross. If it's above knee deep, only trucks. If it's "belly deep" no one but the mail carrier on the horse gets through.

Dr. Aitchison inherited her interest in transportation economics from her father, Dr. Clyde B. Aitchison, now 83, a former member of the Oregon Railroad Commission and member of the Interstate Commerce Commission from 1917 to 1952. The two make their home together in a pleasant nine-room house.

'Beggars' Night' Here To Help Needy Children

Churches in Washington C. H. are joining together to urge all the children to make this year's "Trick or Treat" for others.

Cans have been donated from the Heekin Can Co., of Cincinnati and are supplied to youngsters for collecting money on "Beggars' Night." The money will be turned over to the United Nations Children's Fund. This is the organization which has a gigantic task in helping under-developed countries to provide adequate nutrition for children. Last year more than 32 million children received Children's Fund milk, vitamins, medicine and other care.

THE HALLOWEEN pennies, nickels and dimes which the children collect will be converted into life-giving penicillin, protective vaccines, and health-giving milk.

HERE'S WHAT THE PENNIES WILL BUY.

Efficiency Experts Take Aim At Disorganized Housewife

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

The housewife's days of happy disorganization are numbered. The efficiency experts are after her.

This became clear after a visit to the National Business Show in New York, where they are cunningly undermining feminine sales resistance with such things as baby blue typewriters and pink cash registers.

Do you keep your grocery bills on a kitchen spike? Do you keep your household money in the sugar bowl? Do you figure your budget simply by stopping when you run out of money? Shame on you! That's a typically feminine, archaic and inefficient way to operate a household, say the business machine boys.

The American home is big business these days. This fact was discovered by some of the super salesmen after it dawned on them how much it cost to pay the grocer, the milkman, the laundryman, the baby-sitter, the part time gardener, the garbage collector, the television repair man, the washing machine payments and the once-a-week cleaning woman.

They're going hammer and tongs not only at the poor, helpless housewife, but also at the architects and builders to make a section of every kitchen a business office, complete with pastel typewriter, cash register, file cabinets and built-in desk.

The cash register, they explain, will keep an accurate account of expenditures and what each is for, as well as ring up receipts.

The efficiency boys insist that all this will make life much simpler for the little woman. Just think, they say, how wonderful it will be to have an efficient filing system for carbon copies of notes to the milkman, to Johnny's teacher and to the baby-sitter, ready for reference at a moment's notice. The notes will all have been typed, of course.

You have a record all ready for the man of the house, to prove you haven't been goofing off on the job.

New Flu Outbreak Predicted in Cincy

CINCINNATI (AP)—Most schools in Greater Cincinnati had classes again Monday after some recesses due to a wave of flu-like illness, but health officials said new outbreaks may appear. Dr. Carl Wilzbach, city health commissioner, said: "With cold weather coming, there is a real possibility the virus will attack adults in larger numbers."

Canton Council Delays Action on Job Law

CANTON (AP)—Council Monday night delayed for a week action on a proposed fair employment practices ordinance. The law was recommended by Council's Welfare Committee, which had received no objections to it at a public hearing. But councilman Lawrence Weaver moved it be tabled because of its "wide effect."

Woman 'Came Up Hard Way' In Transportation Position

By JANE EADS
WASHINGTON (AP)—Dr. Beatrice Aitchison, one of the nation's few women transportation economists, says she "came up the hard way" to become the first woman in a top level position in the Postoffice Department.

She served 15 years as a career government employee before her appointment in 1953 as postoffice director of transportation research. She likes her job.

Specifically, Dr. Aitchison's task is finding better, cheaper and faster ways of moving mail between points in the United States.

"We want to get the mail home as fast as we can," she explained. "We have to move letters, packages and circulars to and from any place in the United States. This is the equivalent of being ready to jump any one of a billion and a half ways at any time."

About half the postmasters in the country are women. Many women deliver the mail often under great hardships and over hazardous routes.

"Women are tough," Dr. Aitchison says. "One working in an isolated area just retired after 37 years with not one hour of sick leave. Another uses a jeep most of the time. When she can't, she uses her horse. Sometimes she has to walk."

She is Eva T. Crank of Hattie, Mo., whose route crosses four unbridged streams in Ozarks. During high water, cars and trucks line up and wait for her to come and measure the depth of the water with the horse. If it's only knee deep on the horse cars can cross. If its above knee deep, only trucks. If its "belly deep" no one but the mail carrier on the horse gets through.

Dr. Aitchison inherited her interest in transportation economics from her father, Dr. Clyde B. Aitchison, now 83, a former member of the Oregon Railroad Commission and member of the Interstate Commerce Commission from 1917 to 1952. The two make their home together in a pleasant nine-room house.

'Beggars' Night' Here To Help Needy Children

Churches in Washington C. H. are joining together to urge all the children to make this year's "Trick or Treat" for others.

Cans have been donated from the Heekin Can Co., of Cincinnati and are supplied to youngsters for collecting money on "Beggars' Night." The money will be turned over to the United Nations Children Fund. This is the organization which has a gigantic task in helping under-developed countries to provide adequate nutrition for children. Last year more than 32 million children received Children's Fund milk, vitamins, medicine and other care.

THE HALLOWEEN pennies, nickels and dimes which the children collect will be converted into life-giving penicillin, protective vaccines, and health-giving milk.

HERE'S WHAT THE PENNIES WILL BUY.

5 cents provides the penicillin to cure one child of yaws.

1 cent provides the vaccine to protect one child from TB.

1 cent provides 6 glasses of milk.

Last Halloween more than a million children in 6,000 communities made a gift to all the world's children of more than half a million dollars.

Children who do not have cans may pick them up Wednesday at Grace Methodist Church, and the contents should be turned back to the church the following day.

THIS UNITED NATIONS Children's Fund is a part of the Christian Rural Overseas Program which is solicited each year in Fayette County.

This year's solicitation of the 10 townships in the county will take place during the week of Nov. 25, Thanksgiving week.

Phil Grover, associate county agent, is serving as county chairman of this year's CROP program.

Efficiency Experts Take Aim At Disorganized Housewife

By DOROTHY ROE

AP Women's Editor

The housewife's days of happy disorganization are numbered.

The efficiency experts are after her.

This became clear after a visit to the National Business Show in New York, where they are cunningly undermining feminine sales resistance with such things as baby blue typewriters and pink cash registers.

Do you keep your grocery bills on a kitchen spike? Do you keep your household money in the sugar bowl? Do you figure your budget simply by stopping when you run out of money? Shame on you! That's a typically feminine, archaic and inefficient way to operate a household, say the business machine boys.

The American home is big business these days. This fact was discovered by some of the super salesmen after it dawned on them how much it cost to pay the grocer, the milkman, the laundryman, the baby-sitter, the part time gardener, the garbage collector, the television repair man, the washing machine payments and the once-a-week cleaning woman.

They're going hammer and tongs not only at the poor, helpless housewife, but also at the architects and builders to make a section of every kitchen a business office, complete with pastel typewriter, cash register, file cabinets and built-in desk.

The cash register, they explain, will keep an accurate account of expenditures and what each is for, as well as ring up receipts.

The efficiency boys insist that all this will make life much simpler for the little woman. Just think, they say, how wonderful it will be to have an efficient filing system for carbon copies of notes to the milkman, to Johnny's teacher and to the baby-sitter, ready for reference at a moment's notice. The notes will all have been typed, of course.

You have a record all ready for the man of the house, to prove you haven't been goofing off on the job.

Canton Council Delays Action on Job Law

CANTON (AP)—Council Monday night delayed for a week action on a proposed fair employment practices ordinance. The U. S. government has given the National Inventors' council a list of 387 problems it would like solved. Like how to win friends and influence people, maybe?

One is how to see underwater. Well, it's somebody found out how the current is running.

Another is how to travel on snow without leaving tracks. Easy—use haltracks.

The government also would like to know how to get across gaps without using bridges. Check with Moses.

How to put out atomic fire is another need. Because the way things have been going, fire prevention may not be the answer.

How to get men underground in less than a minute is another item. Well, the Communists did it.

The government also wants a way to stop a massive troop onslaught. Who's got massive troops?

RE-PAINTING FURNITURE

Painted furniture provides an excellent opportunity to introduce color into a drab room. To cover previously painted furniture, make sure that the existing finish is free from cracks or scales, and simply apply the new paint over it. Sandpaper scratches, dents and blistered spots. Sandpaper high-gloss finishes lightly, dust thoroughly, and apply enamel undercoat. When dry, you're ready to apply the enamel finish coat.

Don't discard those comfortable pieces of furniture just because the surfaces are bleached. Renew them easily with colorful enamel.

America's Halloween Customs Have Roots Deep in History

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following account of the beginnings of Halloween was written by the Rev. Father Richard J. Connelly, pastor of St. Columbian Catholic Church, whose observations are the result of careful research into the subject. He also touches on Beggar's (or Trick-or-Treat) Night which will be observed here, by proclamation of the city manager and the chief of police, on Wednesday night. Thursday is Halloween Night.

On Wednesday evening of this week, the doorbell will ring and in answering the door you will find the tiny celebrants of one of the strangest of all holidays—Halloween. There will be witches, demons, ghosts and goblins demanding candy, cookies or apples to appease the wrath of the spirit world.

The spirits of Halloween were not always so small. In pre-Christian times they were the ghosts of kings and heroes. The early Celts observed a feast of the dead in Nov. 1 at which time the souls of all who had died the previous year assembled to obtain expiation of sins and entrance into a Druid heaven.

In 834 A. D. the Catholic Church selected Nov. 1 as All Saints Day or Allhallow's Day thus giving the pagan celebration a Christian basis. Oct. 31 became the Eve of Allhallow's or Halloween. Allhallow's is dedicated to all the known saints of the church as well as all the faithful who died unrecognized but are now in Heaven. From this strange mingling of pagan and Christian belief has come Halloween as we know it. Though it bears a Christian name yet most customs we associate with Halloween comes from the pagan side.

BELIEF in the spirits of Halloween became strongest in Scotland and Ireland where many customs of the holiday originated. As spirits were believed to have the power of prophecy, games were developed by which the future could be foretold. The maiden who ducked for apples and managed to get one in her teeth would place it under her pillow that night and consequently dream of her future husband.

Although pumpkins did not exist in Ireland, the jack-o-lantern had its origin there in the tale of a mean and drunken man named Jack One Halloween, after a particularly violent celebration Jack lay in a stupor on the verge of death.

Satan appeared to claim his soul. The shrewd Jack, however, wasn't ready for death and invited the Devil to join him in "one for the road."

As neither had any money, Jack suggested the Devil turn himself into a sixpence, and to resume his natural shape after the drink was purchased, the Devil agreed and Jack promptly placed the sixpence in his pocket beside a metal crucifix which neutralized the Devil's power. Before releasing him, Jack made him agree to leave him alone for a year.

The next Halloween, The Devil approached Jack as he walked along a country road. Again Jack was too quick. He suggested they pick apples from a nearby tree for sustenance on their journey. As he held the Devil on his shoulders so he could reach the apples, Jack carved a cross on the tree imprisoning Satan among the branches. This time the Devil agreed never to come after Jack again.

EVENTUALLY, however, Jack died and his soul flew about in search of a home. Rejected by Heaven, he journeyed to the gates of Hell, where the Devil—true to his work—refused him admission. Homeless, Jack faced an eternal journey through the dark world of lost souls.

In anguish, he asked the Devil how he could find his way in the dark. The Devil responded by throwing him a live coal from Hell fire. Jack put the coal in a turnip he had been gnawing and with this jack-o-lantern to light his way, has since been wandering the world over. Each Halloween, American children light carved pumpkins to help Jack along his way.

The witches of Halloween are based on facts. As Christianity spread through the Middle East and Europe many of the earlier religions resisted it and secretly developed the cult of witches in direct opposition to the church. One such gathering was held on Halloween.

Some witches claimed to have flown to their convention on broomsticks. A special potion consisting of powerful herbs and drugs was spread over the body in preparation for the flight. So permeated with burning ointments, the witches may well have experienced the sensation of flight, with or without broomstick. Companions of the real witches were cats, usually black ones, and in some cases believed to be witches themselves.

Less evil, and less real perhaps, were the fairy folk of Ireland.

Fairies were believed to have no souls and were jealous of Christians. Like witches, the fairies held meetings. One such gathering was November Eve (Oct. 31) a popular night for other worldly assemblies. As strange events which took place at Halloween were attributed to capricious fairies, certain mortals found it a good time to settle old scores with neighbors or indulge in practical jokes of their own in this way vandalism was introduced to the Halloween tradition.

HALLOWEEN did not become established in America until the middle of the Nineteenth Century following the great immigration of the Irish in the 1840s. The Irish found the large golden pumpkins of the new world made ideal jack-o-lanterns. The American frontier delighted in practical jokes, and Halloween, with its prankish fairies, offered a great opportunity for this type of humor. Farmers became accustomed to finding their property in sad array on Nov. 1 after the commotion of the night before.

The distinguishing feature of Halloween today is the traditional shape known as "trick or treat" by which tribute is exacted from the helpless homeowner in return for leaving his premises untouched a custom that also has its roots in early Ireland. In centuries past Irish rascals paraded along country roads on Halloween stopping at each farmhouse to levy tribute in behalf of a mythical deity, Much Olla and threatening dire consequences if refused. Most farmers paid up.

Lately, treats have become so easy to obtain that trickery has fallen off substantially. By stopping to take vengeance a youthful person may miss out on the goodies offered in other homes.

So, this Halloween the tiny tricksters at your door will be accepting as their historic right a smile and some jelly beans. It is wise to treat them kindly, no matter how harmless they may appear for at their backs march the ghosts and fairies of a thousand Halloweens past—capable of you know not what!

Out Among The Stars — What?

Travel Aboard Spaceships To Be Utterly Fantastic

Editor's Note—What is there in space that pulls the minds of men with more force than earth's gravity? Maybe it's just the same lure of the unknown that sent explorers across oceans and pioneers across plains. Whatever the reason, it's there. And since space is just around the corner, it's time to examine what's out there and how man can make his way through it. This is the first of four articles.

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter
NEW YORK — Your wrist watch tells you it is high noon.

You glance out a porthole, and the sky is entirely black, save for awesomely brilliant, unwinking stars.

Your nose itches. You reach to scratch, and slap your own face viciously... you forgot again about no gravity.

Suddenly a too-loud ping echoes through the ship. You freeze in fright, wondering if a meteor made a hole... then relax, for no alarm signal sounds.

Thirsty, you drink some water, but not from a glass. It comes from a plastic squeeze bottle, with the nozzle carefully planted in your mouth.

For you are going to the moon or Mars aboard a spaceship, where life is fantastically different from earth.

The time—10 years among optimistically, maybe many more. Expert estimates vary.

But this is the promise now that the space age has opened with a little man-made moon circling the earth.

More little moons are coming, American as well as Russian, during the current International Geophysical Year.

They will discover actual space conditions and the hazards which partly will determine when and how humans go journeying safely through space.

Rocket and space experts have drawn the general plans, even designed ships and protective measures to vault humans to our sister planets... and home again.

It's only your second day out on this rocket hurtling through space. You're rapidly getting used to a most peculiar problem of weightlessness, from lack of gravity.

With no gravity, you feel like you are constantly falling into a bottomless pit. A slight push of your foot sends you flying into the air. Sneeze, and you'd fly backward to bang against a cabin wall.

Is that passenger across the cabin standing upside down — or are you? At meals, drop a piece of toast, and it hangs in the air. Your meat would be fastened to a plate, you might eat it by grabbing it with a clamp. The lift of a fork could send it flying to the ceiling.

But your ship preferably is spinning, creating centrifugal force to substitute for gravity. The direction "down" is the outer edge of your round, spinning spaceship.

Gravity gave you a bad moment, you recall, at take-off from earth. The quick acceleration from powerful rocket engines made you feel like lead, with a weight four to ten times greater than that of normal gravity.

But it was soon over and you tumbled up to the space platform 500 miles above earth, dined there, and then boarded this ship for the journey to Mars.

You're aware, and glad of, the forced ventilation. Otherwise you might suffocate. If air has no weight, warm and cold air don't circulate automatically. The air you breathed out could stay right in front of your face, depriving you of oxygen.

Oxygen for a short moon trip comes perhaps from liquid oxygen, turning to gas as it warms up. On this many-weeks jaunt, a special greenhouse of algae or other plant life supplies the oxygen, using the carbon dioxide you breathed out.

You gaze out the porthole, and wonder how cold it is right outside in space. The captain explains: space has no temperature really as we ordinarily mean temperature. There's precious little air to heat up. The side of the ship exposed to the sun gets very hot, but the side in shadow is very cold and radiates heat into space.

The nothingness of space is why it is black, also. There is no air to scatter light. Stars shine with brilliant steadiness.

Up ahead shines Mars, and soon you'll know for yourself just what his "canals" really are.

Wednesday: The how of space travel.

Connelly, pastor of St. Colman's Catholic Church, whose observations are the result of careful research into the subject. He also touches on 'Beggars' (or Trick-or-Treat) Night which will be observed here, by proclamation of the city manager and the chief of police, on Wednesday night. Thursday is Halloween Night.

On Wednesday evening of this week, the doorbell will ring and in answering the door you will find the tiny celebrants of one of the strangest of all holidays—Halloween. There will be witches, demons, ghosts and goblins demanding candy, cookies or apples to appease the wrath of the spirit world.

The spirits of Halloween were not always so small. In pre-Christian times they were the ghosts of kings and heroes. The early Celts observed a feast of the dead in Nov. 1 at which time the souls of all who had died the previous year assembled to obtain expiation of sins and entrance into a Druid heaven.

In 834 A. D. the Catholic Church selected Nov. 1 as All Saints Day or Allhallow's Day thus giving the pagan celebration a Christian basis.

Oct. 31 became the Eve of Allhallow's or Halloween. Allhallow's is dedicated to all the known saints of the church as well as all the faithful who died unrecognized but are now in Heaven. From this strange mingling of pagan and Christian belief has come Halloween as we know it. Though it bears a Christian name yet most customs we associate with Halloween comes from the pagan side.

BELIEF in the spirits of Halloween became strongest in Scotland and Ireland where many customs of the holiday originated. As spirits were believed to have the power of prophecy, games were developed by which the future could be foretold. The maiden who ducked for apples and managed to get one in her teeth would place it under her pillow that night and consequently dream of her future husband.

Although pumpkins did not exist in Ireland, the jack-o-lantern had its origination there in the tale of a mean and drunken man named Jack One Halloween, after a particularly violent celebration Jack lay in a stupor on the verge of death.

Satan appeared to claim his soul. The shrewd Jack, however, wasn't ready for death and invited the Devil to join him in "one for the road."

As neither had any money, Jack suggested the Devil turn himself into a sixpence, and to resume his natural shape after the drink was purchased, the Devil agreed and Jack promptly placed the sixpence in his pocket beside a metal crucifix which neutralized the Devil's power. Before releasing him, Jack made him agree to leave him alone for a year.

The next Halloween, The Devil approached Jack as he walked along a country road. Again Jack was too quick. He suggested they pick apples from a nearby tree for sustenance on their journey. As he held the Devil on his shoulders so he could reach the apples, Jack carved a cross on the tree imprisoning Satan among the branches. This time the Devil agreed never to come after Jack again.

EVENTUALLY, however, Jack died and his soul flew about in search of a home. Rejected by Heaven, he journeyed to the gates of Hell, where the Devil-true to his word-refused him admission. Homeless, Jack faced an eternal journey through the dark world of lost souls.

In anguish, he asked the Devil how he could find his way in the dark. The Devil responded by throwing him a live coal from Hell fire. Jack put the coal in a turnip he had been gnawing and with this jack-o-lantern to light his way, has since been wandering the world over. Each Halloween, American children light carved pumpkins to help Jack along his way.

The witches of Halloween are based on facts. As Christianity spread through the Middle East and Europe many of the earlier religions resisted it and secretly developed the cult of witches in direct opposition to the church. One such gathering was held on Halloween.

Some witches claimed to have flown to their convention on broomsticks. A special potion consisting of powerful herbs and drugs was spread over the body in preparation for the flight. So permeated with burning ointments, the witches may well have experienced the sensation of flight, with or without broomstick. Companions of the real witches were cats, usually black ones, and in some cases believed to be witches themselves.

Less evil, and less real perhaps, were the fairy folk of Ireland.

Fairies were believed to have no souls and were jealous of Christians. Like witches, the fairies held meetings. One such gathering was November Eve (Oct. 31) a popular night for other worldly assemblies. As any strange events which took place at Halloween were attributed to capricious fairies, certain mortals found it a good time to settle old scores with neighbors or indulge in practical jokes of their own in this way vandalism was introduced to the Halloween tradition.

HALLOWEEN did not become established in America until the middle of the Nineteenth Century following the great immigration of the Irish in the 1840s. The Irish found the large golden pumpkins of the new world made ideal jack-o-lanterns. The American frontier delighted in practical jokes, and Halloween, with its prankish fairies, offered a great opportunity for this type of humor. Farmers became accustomed to finding their property in sad array on Nov. 1 after the commotion of the night before.

The distinguishing feature of Halloween today is the traditional shape down known as "trick or treat" by which tribute is exacted from the helpless homeowner in return for leaving his premises untouched a custom that also has its roots in early Ireland. In centuries past Irish rascals paraded along country roads on Halloween stopping at each farmhouse to levy tribute in behalf of a mythical deity, Much Olla and threatening dire consequences if refused. Most farmers paid up.

Lately, treats have become so easy to obtain that trickery has fallen off substantially. By stopping to take vengeance a youthful person may miss out on the goodies offered in other homes.

So, this Halloween the tiny tricksters at your door will be accepting as their historic right a smile and some jelly beans. It is wise to treat them kindly, no matter how harmless they may appear for at their backs march the ghosts and fairies of a thousand Halloweens past-capable of you know not what!

Out Among The Stars—What?

Travel Aboard Spaceships To Be Utterly Fantastic

Editor's Note—What is there in space that pulls the minds of men with more force than earth's gravity? Maybe it's just the same lure of the unknown that sent explorers across oceans and pioneers across plains. Whatever the reason, it's there. And since space is just around the corner, it's time to examine what's out there and how man can make his way through it. This is the first of four articles.

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter
NEW YORK (AP)—Your wrist watch tells you it is high noon.

You glance out a porthole, and the sky is entirely black, save for awesomely brilliant, uninking stars.

Your nose itches. You reach to scratch, and slap your own face viciously... you forgot again about no gravity.

Suddenly a too-loud ping echoes through the ship. You freeze in fright, wondering if a meteor made a hole... then relax, for no alarm signal sounds.

Thirsty, you drink some water, but not from a glass. It comes from a plastic squeeze bottle, with the nozzle carefully planted in your mouth.

For you are going to the moon or Mars aboard a spaceship, where life is fantastically different from earth.

The time—10 years among optimistically, maybe many more. Expert estimates vary.

But this is the promise now that the space age has opened with a little man-made moon circling the earth.

More little moons are coming, American as well as Russian, during the current International Geophysical Year.

They will discover actual space conditions and the hazards which partly will determine when and how humans go journeying safely through space.

Rocket and space experts have drawn the general plans, even designed ships and protective measures to vault humans to our sister planets... and home again. It's only your second day out on this rocket hurtling through space. You're rapidly getting used to a most peculiar problem of weightlessness, from lack of gravity.

With no gravity, you feel like you are constantly falling into a bottomless pit. A slight push of your foot sends you flying into the air. Sneeze, and you'd fly backward to bang against a cabin wall.

Is that passenger across the cabin standing upside down—or are you? At meals, drop a piece of toast, and it hangs in the air. Your meat would be fastened to a plate, you might eat it by grabbing it with a clamp. The lift of a fork could send it flying to the ceiling.

But your ship preferably is spinning, creating centrifugal force to substitute for gravity. The direction "down" is the outer edge of your round, spinning spaceship.

Gravity gave you a bad moment, you recall, at take-off from earth. The quick acceleration from powerful rocket engines made you feel like lead, with a weight four to ten times greater than that of normal gravity.

But it was soon over and you taxied up to the space platform 500 miles above earth, dined there, and then boarded this ship for the journey to Mars.

You're aware, and glad of, the forced ventilation. Otherwise you might suffocate. If air has no weight, warm and cold air don't circulate automatically. The air you breathed out could stay right in front of your face, depriving you of oxygen.

Oxygen for a short moon trip comes perhaps from liquid oxygen, turning to gas as it warms up. On this many-weeks jaunt, a special greenhouse of algae or other plant life supplies the oxygen, using the carbon dioxide you breathed out.

You gaze out the porthole, and wonder how cold it is right outside in space. The captain explains: space has no temperature really as we ordinarily mean temperature. There's precious little air to heat up. The side of the ship exposed to the sun gets very hot, but the side in shadow is very cold and radiates heat into space.

The nothingness of space is why it is black, also. There is no air to scatter light. Stars shine with brilliant steadiness.

Up ahead shines Mars, and soon you'll know for yourself just what his "canals" really are.

Cleveland '11' Voted as Top Team in State

Benedictine Lauded With Massillon 2nd; Warren Drops to 3rd

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Cleveland Benedictine moved right out front today in the race for Ohio's high school football championship. Warren Harding's season-long leaders skidded to third following a bizarre loss to Massillon.

Warren, despite the loss, slipped only to third place, knocking Cincinnati Purcell from that berth to fourth, although the Queen City club, highest scoring combine in the top 10, smothered Louisville (Ky.) Valley 46 to 0.

The 41 sports editors rating the teams today shoved Toledo De Vilbiss and Fremont Ross down a notch, to fifth and sixth respectively, as Massillon crowded into the upper bracket. De Vilbiss was a 32-0 winner over Lima, and Ross whipped Lorain 26-0.

Youngstown South defeated Sharon, Pa., 35-0 to go around Canton McKinley into seventh place, the defending champions taking eighth with a 14-6 squeaker over Alliance.

Troy, with a 60-26 win over Dayton Fairborn, stayed in ninth—the only team to hold its position—but unbeaten East Cleveland Shaw dropped Lancaster from 10th, although the Gaels were 47-14 victors over Marietta.

Lancaster's fall to 22nd place was one of the poll's surprises, and cut the south's representation in the top 10 to two teams—Purcell and Troy. All others are from the north.

Cleveland Benedictine goes against unbeaten Cleveland Cathedral Latin Friday at Cleveland. Massillon plays Barberton's Magies, and Warren meets Lorain.

Fremont Ross, winner of 27 straight, goes against unbeaten but once-faded Marion Harding Friday, with the Buckeye Conference crown at stake.

Lorain, which meets Warren this week, gained only 99 yards in losing 26-0 to Fremont, as fullback John Level of Ross intercepted three passes. Ross has picked up 2,012 yards rushing in seven games and Level and halfback Jim Halley have gained 1,621 of 'em.

Wellston's 33-14 win over Jackson for seven straight ended the losers' four-year domination of the Southeastern Ohio loop and gave the laurels to the Golden Rockets. Springfield Public ended a four-game losing streak by nosing out Toledo Libbey 15-14, a third-period safety giving the Wildcats the winning margin.

Lancaster's Larry (Bomber) Baughman went 5, 30 and 34 yards for touchdowns—running his total to 14—against Marietta, and halfback Don Maddux scored on runs of 39, 33 and 64. Baughman has 919 yards for 109 carries.

Here is how Ohio sports editors rate the state's high school football teams. Shown are the first place votes in parentheses, the poll points on a 10-9-8-etc basis, and the scoring records of the leaders.

Browns Linebacker Suffers Fracture

CLEVELAND (AP)—X-rays showed Monday that Chuck Noll, veteran linebacker of the Cleveland Browns, broke an arm in Sunday's 17-7 victory over the Chicago Cardinals.

Galen Fiss, 218-pound sophomore from Kansas, will move into Noll's position next Sunday against the Washington Redskins at the Stadium.

Coach Paul Brown is looking around for someone to spell Fiss. It might be Paul Wiggins, the rookie from Stanford who played defensive end against the Cards.

Big Ten To Start Saturday Separating Men from Boys

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Big Ten begins its separation process Saturday when Iowa's defending champions tangle with Michigan at Ann Arbor in a race which has only four teams remaining in the struggle for the title and Rose Bowl bid.

Iowa, Michigan, Ohio State and Michigan State are still in the running for laurels although the Hawkeyes are ineligible for the New Year's Day trip to Pasadena.

Iowa slid past Northwestern Saturday, 6-0, on a fluke pass play which went for a touchdown, Michigan bowled over Minnesota 24-7, Don Sutherin's third quarter field goal gave Ohio State a 16-13 victory over Wisconsin and Michigan State rallied to whip Illinois, 19-14, on a 36-yard touchdown run by Walt Kowalczyk.

Indiana scored its first victory of the season by defeating Villanova, 14-7, and Purdue swamped Miami of Ohio, 37-6, in a pair of non-conference games. Elsewhere, Notre Dame kept its slate clean with a 13-7 decision over Pitt and Texas Christian tripped Marquette 26-7.

Iowa has the task of whipping Michigan, Minnesota and Ohio State in succession if it wishes to keep the Big Ten crown at Iowa City. Michigan last year pasted Iowa with its only loss and the Wolves certainly looked the part of "conquering heroes" against Minnesota in regaining possession of the Little Brown Jug.

The fact that the Hawks play only six games will work in their favor if they go undefeated. One loss could boot them out of the running since Ohio State and Michigan play seven games.

Michigan has already suffered one loss and cannot afford another. Ohio State could lose one and still take all the marbles since Michigan State also is saddled with one defeat and plays only six games.

The Spartans must whip Wisconsin and Minnesota and then hope the other three contenders all finish with two losses to win the title.

Illinois and Minnesota were relegated to also-ran roles Saturday since they both were beaten a second time. No team has gone to the Rose Bowl with two defeats and this season doesn't seem to be the exception.

While Iowa and Minnesota are matched in a struggle for survival Saturday, Michigan State will be at Wisconsin, Ohio State is host to Northwestern, Purdue is at Illinois, and Indiana is at Minnesota.

In other Midwest battles, Navy is at Notre Dame and College of Pacific invades Marquette.

Michigan Halfback Sets Scoring Pace

CHICAGO (AP)—Jim Pace, Michigan's swift and nifty halfback, took over the Big Ten all-games football scoring lead with a pair of touchdowns in a 24-7 triumph over Minnesota last week.

Pace's two touchdowns gave him a total of six for 36 points and one-touchdown edge over Wisconsin speedster Danny Lewis who moved into second place with 30 points.

Don Sutherin, who booted a game-winning field goal for Ohio State against Wisconsin, took over third place with 27 points. Sutherin has a pair of touchdowns, one field goal and 12 extra points.

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Russia held a firm lead in the 1957 world pentathlon championships today as swimming, the fourth event on the program, began.

Russia won the pistol shooting event Monday and maintained its grip on first place with a 7,868 point total. Sweden (7,164) is second and the United States (6,797) third in the 11 team race.

American officials were anything but hopeful about their chances of overtaking the pacesetter Russians.

Major Mendenhall, chief of the American delegation said, "It will be very, very difficult to catch up with the Russians."

Warren Loses On Protest

Massillon Win OK'd Despite Faulty Clock

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—H. H. Emswiler, Ohio High School Athletic Assn. commissioner, has decided to let stand Massillon's protested 20-14 football victory over Warren last Friday.

The victory knocked Warren from the ranks of unbeaten Ohio high school football teams. Warren is the No. 1 team in the Associated Press high school poll.

Massillon won during the last four seconds of the game and Warren coach Gene Slaughter protested to Emswiler. Slaughter said the scoreboard showed 59 seconds to play and suddenly jumped to 1:59.

Then Massillon sophomore quarterback Joe Sparma passed 38 yards to end Clyde Childers who raced into the end zone. The score had been tied 14-14 before that touchdown.

"There is nothing we can do under the circumstances about altering the score," Emswiler said. "We have notified the Warren school authorities to this effect."

Emswiler said he talked with all four officials, both coaches, the timer, both school administrators, the Warren newspaper, and a radio station in Warren and one in Canton.

"The association has no authority to order games played over," Emswiler said. "None of the officials seemed to suspect that the clock was off, but the Warren coach did."

He added that tape recordings made by the Warren radio station would indicate that the clock was off at least twice during the last four minutes.

"I am of the opinion that the clock was mechanically wrong and suspect that it was wrong not only during the close of the fourth quarter, when with the score tied more people would be watching the clock, but that it was probably wrong during the first, second and third quarters also," Emswiler said.

Under those circumstances, he said, there was nothing he could do about altering the score.

Massillon led 14-0 at halftime but Warren outplayed the Tigers in the second half to tie the game 14-14.

Texas A&M Voted as Top Grid Outfit

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Texas Aggies again showed that even the best college football teams can't afford to let down for a moment as they rolled into first place in the Associated Press weekly ranking poll. Oklahoma proved the point as it slipped to second after a close call against Colorado in the opinion of sports writers.

It was the second time this season that Oklahoma's Sooners, unbeaten in 45 consecutive games, had lost the lead just because they didn't win decisively. They dropped behind Michigan State after their 21-7 victory over Texas then regarded as a comparatively weak foe; regained the No. 1 spot a week ago, then dropped behind Texas A & M today after Colorado had held them to a 14-13 decision.

The Aggies, meanwhile, rolled over Baylor 14-0 for their fifth straight season and their fourth shutout in six starts.

Iowa, tied for the Big Ten lead, retained third place and was followed, in order, by Auburn, Notre Dame, Michigan State, Duke, Ohio State, Army and North Carolina State.

When Texas A&M was voted No. 1 in the poll, it marked the first time in seven years for a Southwest Conference team to attain that rating. In 1950, Southern Methodist was voted No. 1 in mid-season.

Here Are More News Briefs From Midwest Grid Camps

CHICAGO (AP)—Midwest Football Briefs:

Iowa—The unbeaten Hawkeyes opened preparations for their biggest test of the season when they meet Michigan at Ann Arbor Saturday. Coach Forest Evashevski feels his team must improve 25 percent to beat the Wolverines.

Illinois—Sophomore end Rich Kreitling returned to drills for the first time since suffering a back injury nine days ago. Guard Dave Ash, down with the flu, also participated.

Northwestern—Guard Jack Slatka and tackle Gene Gossage, both sidelined several weeks, were back in uniform and are expected to play against Ohio State.

Ohio State—Coach Woody Hayes is afraid of winless Northwestern. "We must play our best game of the season to win this one," said Hayes.

Michigan—End Dave Bowers has a dislocated shoulder and will probably be sidelined the rest of the season. Fullback John Herrstein returned to practice but is on the doubtful list for the Iowa game because of an injured ankle.

Michigan State—Spartan backs drilled long on the art of holding onto a football. MSU has had a serious case of fumbleitis in its last two games. "I'm thinking of sewing handles on the ball," quipped Coach Duffy Daugherty.

Minnesota—The varsity was excused from practice yesterday in an effort to boost the team's morale and give the players a chance to heal. At least six players are nursing injuries but quarterback Dick Larson is the only one expected to miss the Indiana game.

Indiana—The Hoosiers took it easy after posting their first victory of the season Saturday. Coach Bob Hicks praised the players for their blocking and tackling.

Purdue—Quarterback Bob Spook has hopes that his injured hand will mend in time for the Illinois game. The Boilermakers worked on defense.

Wisconsin—The Badgers worked long and hard on passing. Coach Milt Bruhn said he expected the team to be in top shape for the Michigan State battle.

Notre Dame—Tackle Frank Geremia returned to drills yesterday after missing the Pitt game because of flu. However,

Benedictine Lauded With Massillon 2nd; Warren Drops to 3rd

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Cleveland Benedictine moved right out front today in the race for Ohio's high school football championship. Warren Harding's season-long leaders skidded to third following a bizarre loss to Massillon.

Warren, despite the loss, slipped only to third place, knocking Cincinnati Purcell from that berth to fourth, although the Queen City club, highest scoring combine in the top 10, smothered Louisville (Ky.) Valley 46 to 0.

The 41 sports editors rating the teams today showed Toledo De Villbiss and Fremont Ross down a notch, to fifth and sixth respectively, as Massillon crowded into the upper bracket. De Villbiss was a 32-0 winner over Lima, and Ross whipped Lorain 26-0.

Youngstown South defeated Sharon, Pa., 35-0 to go around Canton McKinley into seventh place, the defending champions taking eighth with a 14-6 squeaker over Alliance.

Troy, with a 60-26 win over Dayton Fairborn, stayed in ninth—the only team to hold its position—but unbeaten East Cleveland Shaw deposed Lancaster from 10th, although the Eagles were 47-14 victors over Marietta.

Lancaster's fall to 22nd place was one of the poll's surprises, and cut the south's representation in the top 10 to two teams—Purcell and Troy. All others are from the north.

Cleveland Benedictine goes against once-beaten Cleveland Cathedral Latin Friday at Cleveland. Massillon plays Barborton's Magics, and Warren meets Lorain.

Fremont Ross, winner of 27 straight, goes against unbeaten but once-tied Marion Harding Friday, with the Buckeye Conference crown at stake.

Lorain, which meets Warren this week, gained only 99 yards in losing 26-0 to Fremont, as fullback John Level of Ross intercepted three passes. Ross has picked up 2,012 yards rushing in seven games and Level and halfback Jim Hailey have gained 1,621 of 'em.

Wellston's 33-14 win over Jackson for seven straight ended the losers' four-year domination of the Southeastern Ohio loop and gave the laurels to the Golden Rockets. Springfield Public ended a four-game losing streak by nosing out Toledo Libbey 15-14, a third-period safety giving the Wildcats the winning margin.

Lancaster's Larry (Bomber) Baughman went 5, 30 and 34 yards for touchdowns—running his total to 14—against Marietta, and halfback Don Maddux scored on runs of 39, 33 and 64. Baughman has 919 yards for 109 carries.

Here is how Ohio sports editors rate the state's high school football teams. Shown are the first place votes in parentheses, the poll points on a 10-9-8-etc basis, and the scoring records of the leaders.

Browns Linebacker Suffers Fracture

CLEVELAND (AP)—X-rays showed Monday that Chuck Noll, veteran linebacker of the Cleveland Browns, broke an arm in Sunday's 17-7 victory over the Chicago Cardinals.

Galen Fiss, 218-pound sophomore from Kansas, will move into Noll's position next Sunday against the Washington Redskins at the Stadium.

Coach Paul Brown is looking around for someone to spell Fiss. It might be Paul Wiggin, the rookie from Stanford who played defensive end against the Cards.

Big Ten To Start Saturday Separating Men from Boys

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Big Ten begins its separation process Saturday when Iowa's defending champions tangle with Michigan at Ann Arbor in a race which has only four teams remaining in the struggle for the title and Rose Bowl bid.

Iowa, Michigan, Ohio State and Michigan State are still in the running for laurels although the Hawkeyes are ineligible for the New Year's Day trip to Pasadena. Iowa slid past Northwestern Saturday, 6-0, on a fluke pass play which went for a touchdown, Michigan bowled over Minnesota 24-7, Don Sutherland's third quarter field goal gave Ohio State a 16-13 victory over Wisconsin and Michigan State rallied to whip Illinois, 19-14, on a 36-yard touchdown run by Walt Kowalczyk.

Indiana scored its first victory of the season by defeating Villanova, 14-7, and Purdue swamped Miami of Ohio, 37-6, in a pair of non-conference games. Elsewhere, Notre Dame kept its slate clean with a 13-7 decision over Pitt and Texas Christian tripped Marquette 26-7.

Iowa has the task of whipping Michigan, Minnesota and Ohio State in succession if it wishes to keep the Big Ten crown at Iowa City. Michigan last year pasted Iowa with its only loss and the Wolves certainly looked the part of "conquering heroes" against Minnesota in regaining possession of the Little Brown Jug.

The fact that the Hawks play only six games will work in their favor if they go undefeated. One loss could boot them out of the running since Ohio State and Michigan play seven games.

Michigan has already suffered one loss and cannot afford another. Ohio State could lose one and still take all the marbles since Michigan State also is saddled with one defeat and plays only six games.

The Spartans must whip Wisconsin and Minnesota and then hope the other three contenders all finish with two losses to win the title.

Illinois and Minnesota were relegated to also-ran roles Saturday since they both were beaten a second time. No team has gone to the Rose Bowl with two defeats and this season doesn't seem to be the exception.

While Iowa and Minnesota are matched in a struggle for survival Saturday, Michigan State will be at Wisconsin, Ohio State is host to Northwestern, Purdue is at Illinois, and Indiana is at Minnesota.

In other Midwest battles, Navy is at Notre Dame and College of Pacific invades Marquette.

Michigan Halfback Sets Scoring Pace

CHICAGO (AP)—Jim Pace, Michigan's swift and nifty halfback, took over the Big Ten all-games football scoring lead with a pair of touchdowns in a 24-7 triumph over Minnesota last week.

Pace's two touchdowns gave him a total of six for 36 points and one-touchdown edge over Wisconsin speedster Danny Lewis who moved into second place with 30 points.

Don Sutherland, who booted a game-winning field goal for Ohio State against Wisconsin, took over third place with 27 points. Sutherland has a pair of touchdowns, one field goal and 12 extra points.

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Russia held a firm lead in the 1957 world pentathlon championships today as swimming, the fourth event on the program, began.

Russia won the pistol shooting event Monday and maintained its grip on first place with a 7,868 point total. Sweden (7,164) is second and the United States (6,797) third in the 11 team race.

American officials were anything but hopeful about their chances of overtaking the pacesetter Russians.

Major Mendenhall, chief of the American delegation said, "It will be very, very difficult to catch up with the Russians."

Warren Loses On Protest

Massillon Win OK'd Despite Faulty Clock

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—H. H. Emswiler, Ohio High School Athletic Assn. commissioner, has decided to let stand Massillon's protested 20-14 football victory over Warren last Friday.

The victory knocked Warren from the ranks of unbeaten Ohio high school football teams. Warren is the No. 1 team in the Associated Press high school poll.

Massillon won during the last four seconds of the game and Warren coach Gene Slaughter protested to Emswiler. Slaughter said the scoreboard showed 59 seconds to play and suddenly jumped to 1:59.

Then Massillon sophomore quarterback Joe Sparma passed 38 yards to end Clyde Childers who raced into the end zone. The score had been tied 14-14 before that touchdown.

"There is nothing we can do under the circumstances about altering the score," Emswiler said. "We have notified the Warren school authorities to this effect."

Emswiler said he talked with all four officials, both coaches, the timer, both school administrators, the Warren newspaper, and a radio station in Warren and one in Canton.

"The association has no authority to order games played over," Emswiler said. "None of the officials seemed to suspect that the clock was off, but the Warren coach did."

He added that tape recordings made by the Warren radio station would indicate that the clock was off at least twice during the last four minutes.

"I am of the opinion that the clock was mechanically wrong and suspect that it was wrong not only during the close of the fourth quarter, when with the score tied more people would be watching the clock, but that it was probably wrong during the first, second and third quarters also," Emswiler said.

Under those circumstances, he said, there was nothing he could do about altering the score.

Massillon led 14-0 at halftime but Warren outplayed the Tigers in the second half to tie the game 14-14.

Texas A&M Voted as Top Grid Outfit

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Texas Aggies again howed that even the best college football teams can't afford to let down for a moment as they rolled into first place in the Associated Press weekly ranking poll. Oklahoma proved the point as it slipped to second after a close call against Colorado in the opinion of sports writers.

It was the second time this season that Oklahoma's Sooners, unbeaten in 45 consecutive games, had lost the lead just because they didn't win decisively. They dropped behind Michigan State after their 21-7 victory over Texas then regarded as a comparatively weak foe; regained the No. 1 spot a week ago, then dropped behind Texas A & M today after Colorado had held them to a 14-13 decision.

The Aggies, meanwhile, rolled over Baylor 14-0 for their sixth straight this season and their fourth shutout in six starts.

Iowa, tied for the Big Ten lead, retained third place and was followed, in order, by Auburn, Notre Dame, Michigan State, Duke, Ohio State, Army and North Carolina State.

When Texas A&M was voted No. 1 in the poll, it marked the first time in seven years for a Southwestern Conference team to attain that rating. In 1950, Southern Methodist was voted No. 1 in mid-season.

Grinding Drills Facing Buckeyes

COLUMBUS (AP) — Ohio State's football team goes through a practice without pads today to "run the soreness out of them," as Coach Woody Hayes puts it.
Then, says the OSU mentor, comes a grinding week-long session of drills to hone up the Bucks for their encounter with Northwestern here Saturday.

From the standpoint of statistics, Hayes doesn't have much to worry about. Northwestern hasn't won a game yet this season. The Wildcats lost to Oregon State 13-

22, to Minnesota 6-41, to Michigan
14-34 and to Iowa 0-6. Ohio State has won four of its five games, and all of its Big Ten encounters.

The County School Board --- WHAT FOR?

To Hold The Line And Protect Rural Territory

In Probate Court suit No. 4235, Sam Marting and others ending last February 6th when the assigned Judge ruled FROM THE BENCH that Fayette County could legally have a Citizens' Committee, it was THE COUNTY SCHOOL BOARD, not THE PROBATE
COURT that authorized the present Citizens' Committee.

Why Was This Important? BECAUSE ---

1. This County Board action SAVED the Miami Trace district and the proposed Rural High School that the voters approved.
2. Had this trial continued on February 6th, then Probate Court action could have named the entire 9-member Citizens' Committee which could have destroyed Miami Trace and disregarded the will of the voters as expressed last November.

Do you want an R.P.A. controlled County Board which could destroy our district or do you want a safe and tested County Board --- Gene Avey, Floyd Hopkes and H. B. Lightle, whose position on this issue is definitely proved and pledged?

Vote for GENE AVEY, FLOYD HOPKES and H. B. LIGHTLE on November 5th.

Band Boosters Outline Plans

Constitution Adopted And Movies Shown

The Band Boosters adopted a constitution for their new organization at Monday night's second meeting since it was formed a month ago. They then outlined some plans for the future.

The constitution provides that the name shall be the Washington C. H. High School Band Boosters and that the primary objective shall be to "promote the welfare of the Washington C. H. High School Band in co-operation with school officials."

Although there are "more than 185" members of the organization, less than a third of them were at Monday night's meeting, which was held in the band room of the high school. Illness was blamed for cutting down the attendance.

The constitution also provides that membership is open to anyone interested in the WHS Band. Organizers of the Band Boosters figure that since the band is called on to play at so many community affairs, such as the Fourth of July, Memorial Day and Halloween parades, the Boosters will not be limited to parents of 110 boys and girls in the band. Dues are $1 a year.

AFTER THE football season, during which the band puts on shows at the halftime of the nine games, the band will start preparations for its annual concert, which will be given in the high school auditorium early next spring. There was some discussion at Monday night's meeting of projects the Boosters could undertake to raise some money for financing trips, or other activities, for the band. A committee is to make some project recommendations at the next meeting.

All meetings are to be held the last Monday of each month.

The Boosters president, Mrs. M. Grove Davis, announced that the band will go to the University of Cincinnati Saturday to participate in band day with 35 other top flight high school bands from three states, Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky, as a part of the UC-University of Detroit football game.

Following the business session, Bandmaster Robert Neumann and John Leland showed movies made on the band's trip to Cleveland last year to perform during the half time of the Cleveland Browns professional football game in huge Cleveland stadium.

The hospitality committee, headed by Mrs. Ray French, served cider and doughnuts at the close of the meeting.

Indiana GI Convicted in Korea Slaying

SEOUL (AP)—U. S. Army Specialist 3c Raymond L. Bailey of Brownsburg, Ind., today was convicted of negligently shooting and killing a 15-year-old Korean school boy and sentenced to nine months at hard labor.

An Army general court-martial also ordered a bad conduct discharge for Bailey, who was guarding a military train at the time of the shooting Oct. 3.

The sentence is subject to review by higher authorities. Bailey's fatal wounding of schoolboy Song Joon Won was one of several shootings of Koreans by American GI guards which this month aroused Korean anger.

An eight-man court convicted the soldier on a charge of negligent homicide. Two Korean witnesses testified they heard no warning shouts from the soldier.

Pfc. Arnold Thompson of Brooklyn, N. Y., who was on guard duty with Bailey, testified the victim apparently was reaching for the door of a boxcar when Bailey first yelled "Stop," then fired.

Gen. George H. Ecker, U. N. commander in Korea, said a week after the shooting that an investigation showed Bailey executed his authority in using his gun.

Too Many Autos Crashing Home

ALTOONA, Pa. (AP)—Walter Evans slept a little uneasily Monday night. So did his wife.

Late Monday afternoon two autos collided at an intersection a few feet from the Evans home at nearby East Freedom. The autos locked together and smashed into a wall of the house.

Little more than three hours later a truck and auto came together and they, too, smashed into the Evans home.

The wall of the home was damaged but no one was inside the house. Two of the four drivers were injured.

"It makes a person wonder if they shouldn't move to a safer location," Mrs. Evans said.

Grocer Dies In Gun Duel With Bandits

AKRON (AP)—Russell L. Foutty, 46, was shot to death Monday night in an apparent robbery attempt as he was putting his car away after driving home with the day's receipts from his grocery.

Police said that before Foutty died he shot and critically wounded one of his assailants, but the others escaped in an automobile.

Richard Miller, 26, of suburban Portage Lakes, is in Akron General Hospital with a bullet wound in the chest. Police said they had been seeking him as a parole violator since Jan. 1.

Three men were sought today as Miller's accomplices in the Foutty slaying.

The other robbers fled following the exchange of shots without taking Foutty's money. In his pockets were found $1,574.

A neighbor, who did not hear the shots, found Foutty dead beside the driveway, and Miller wounded in Foutty's back yard. A loaded, unfired .32 revolver was found beside Miller.

Foutty's two children—Penny, 6, and Russell Jr., 8—raced to the back door just in time to see their father shot down.

"I saw daddy on his knees shooting his gun," Penny said.

Judge's Son Robs Bank For 'Kicks'

CANTON (AP)—A judge's son who said he craved excitement was jailed Monday night for stealing $20,000 in a weekend burglary of a bank where he worked as a teller.

Emmett D. Graybill Jr., 25, son of a Massillon municipal judge, was accused of taking the money from a drive-in branch of the Harter Bank & Trust Co.

Police said he confessed the theft and led them to the spot in Massillon where he had buried the money in a tin can. They recovered most of it.

John B. Root, vice president of the bank, who discovered the shortage in a special audit Monday, said he was shocked at Graybill's confession.

"He told me he didn't need the money. He said he didn't know why he stole it. He said it gave him a good feeling—the excitement of it."

Graybill had worked for 14 months as one of three employees in the drive-in branch across the street from the bank's main downtown office. Unmarried, he had lived with his father in Massillon until recently, then moved to an apartment in Canton.

Root said the youth was investigated thoroughly before he was hired and had a clean record. He said it was just chance that Graybill was the first of the employees to be questioned by police.

He is scheduled to appear today before a U. S. commissioner.

Halloween Vandalism Not Bad Yet

Maybe it's just too early in the season.

Whatever the reason, there really hasn't been too much Halloween vandalism here so far this year, if law enforcement records are any indication.

City police and county sheriff's officers are knocking on wood with the most of Halloween week still ahead, but they're hoping things will continue as they have been.

In the county, there have been a few isolated reports of Halloween prowlers, but not much else. Highway Department signs apparently have remained intact so far, according to the county engineer's office.

City police have only one vandalism report so far this week on their books—a statement from Charles Bellar of 1139 E. Paint St., who said someone punched 10 holes in his auto radiator Sunday night while the car was parked in front of his home.

Officers point out there is no proof that this was the work of a prankster.

Car Is Stolen From Court St.

A 1950 two-door black Ford, the property of the Carroll Halliday, Inc., new and used car agency, was stolen from a parking place on Court St. near Fayette St. about 4:30 p. m. Monday.

William Haines, Halliday used car salesman who parked the car there while he made a call in a downtown store, said the key was in the vehicle when he left it.

Police theorized the thief watched Haines leave the car and drove off in it as soon as he was out of sight.

The auto had not been recovered by noon Tuesday. License number is D-14 1781.

Two Cars Collide At Intersection

Two drivers turning on to Court St. from opposite directions bumped fenders in the only accident reported by police Monday night and Tuesday morning.

Police said Carrie Washburn, 62, of 608 High St., turned east onto Court St. from N. North St., just as Carroll Wayne Blanton, 20, of Route 2, New Holland, turned east from S. North St.

They collided in the center of Court St. just after they had completed their turns. There was not enough evidence to indicate which driver was in the wrong lane, Patrolman Elmer Kelley said.

Time Claimed 'Running Out' For U. S. Cold War Victory

WASHINGTON (AP)—Industrialist David Sarnoff, said today that time for victory in the cold war is running out under the pressure of Soviet success in weapon technology.

"If we are to win the cold war, or at least obtain the upper hand in it, it must be done before mankind is overwhelmed by the holocaust of hydrogen war," Sarnoff said.

Sarnoff, chairman of the board of the Radio Corp. of America and a retired Army brigadier general, spoke at the annual meeting of the Assn. of the Army of the United States.

Sarnoff said the Moscow announcement last August of a successful test of an intercontinental ballistic missile "may be exaggerated but it is not safe to rely on that assumption." Perfection of an ICBM is inevitable because "both sides know its principle," said Sarnoff.

"It is only a matter of time—within five years and possibly sooner—that both Russia and the United States will have mass production of the transoceanic missiles," he predicted.

THEN WILL COME "dreadful parity," Sarnoff forecast. He contended that the logic of not starting a war with those weapons might not be a restraining influence—"emotion, raised to a pitch of hysteria by the very magnitude of the menace, may vanquish reason."

Safari Over As Elephant Surrenders

MITCHELL HOLLOW, N. Y. (AP)—Siam, the Catskills elephant, munched today on whisky-soaked feed while residents of this area relaxed. The safari is over.

The 2½-ton female, considerably chastened by a cold and hunger, submitted meekly to her captors Monday.

She had been romping in the Catskill Mountains for 13 days, defying safaris of all sorts, aircraft and her trainers.

Today she was back at the farm she fled Oct. 16. After a week's repose "to settle her mind," she again will take up the television and circus life that she had forsaken for a simple pastoral existence.

A posse trailed the third animal Monday several miles through woods until she finally halted near a quarry. She had been caught and broken away twice during the day.

Alfred Vidbel, one of her trainers, simply walked up to her and talked. She listened while an assistant put hobbling chains on her legs.

Then she lumbered up a ramp and was off to the farm she had fled when she was frightened by galloping horses.

A veterinarian administered a shot of penicillin and prescribed whisky in the feed. Two tumblers were dropped in.

The veterinarian said he found the 13-year-old Siam suffering mostly from upset nerves.

Bloodhounds Join In California Hunt For Deaf-Mute, 3

REDDING, Calif. (AP)—Bloodhounds today joined hundreds of persons looking for a 3-year-old girl who can't hear or answer their cries. She's a deaf-mute.

Barefooted and wearing a tee-shirt and blue jeans, Sarah Ann Dobbs, accompanied by two pups, apparently wandered away from her home in rough brush country a mile north of Redding.

The area is honeycombed with abandoned mine shafts and open pits where men once sought gold. When James Dobbs, a miner, and his wife missed their daughter about 5 p. m. Monday they called Sheriff John Balma.

One of the pups returned to the Dobbs house about midnight. The other still is missing.

Christmas Coming

30-Foot Tree Wanted for Decorations

Who's got a 30-foot Christmas tree?

They're not much in demand, because most people don't have 30-foot living rooms. But the Washington C. H. Chamber of Commerce needs one to decorate the courthouse lawn.

Chamber Manager William Stoughton said that the organization's Christmas committee has met, and that plans for city decorations are "coming along well."

But... The tree need not be exactly 30 feet tall, but it must be approximately the height of a good-sized two-story building, so that it will fill out the compositional requirements of the city decorations. Also, it must be big enough to hold the 400-odd colored lights the Chamber owns.

Provided they get the tree, the Chamber's Christmas decorations will be largely what they have been in the past, only more so. There'll be just as many colored light and greenery festoons over the streets; there'll be Santa Claus and a brand new "pealing bell" mechanism, probably to be hung over Court St.

Band Boosters Outline Plans

Constitution Adopted And Movies Shown

The Band Boosters adopted a constitution for their new organization at Monday night's second meeting since it was formed a month ago. They then outlined some plans for the future.

The constitution provides that the name shall be the Washington C. H. High School Band Boosters and that the primary objective shall be to "promote the welfare of the Washington C. H. High School Band in co-operation with school officials."

Although there are "more than 185" members of the organization, less than a third of them were at Monday night's meeting, which was held in the band room of the high school. Illness was blamed for cutting down the attendance.

The constitution also provides that membership is open to anyone interested in the WHS band. Organizers of the Band Boosters figure that since the band is called on to play at so many community affairs, such as the Fourth of July, Memorial Day and Halloween parades, the Boosters will not be limited to parents of 110 boys and girls in the band. Dues are $1 a year.

AFTER THE football season, during which the band puts on shows at the halftime of the nine games, the band will start preparations for its annual concert, which will be given in the high school auditorium early next spring. There was some discussion at Monday night's meeting of projects the Boosters could undertake to raise some money for financing trips, or other activities, for the band. A committee is to make some project recommendations at the next meeting.

All meetings are to be held the last Monday of each month. The Boosters president, Mrs. M. Grove Davis, announced that the band will go to the University of Cincinnati Saturday to participate in band day with 35 other top flight high school bands from three states, Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky, as a part of the UC-University of Detroit football game.

Following the business session, Bandmaster Robert Neumann and John Leland showed movies made on the band's trip to Cleveland last year to perform during the half time of the Cleveland Browns professional football game in huge Cleveland stadium.

The hospitality committee, headed by Mrs. Ray French, served cider and doughnuts at the close of the meeting.

Indiana GI Convicted in Korea Slaying

SEOUL (AP)—U. S. Army Specialist 3c Raymond L. Bailey of Brownsburg, Ind., today was convicted of negligently shooting and killing a 15-year-old Korean school boy and sentenced to nine months at hard labor.

An Army general court-martial also ordered a bad conduct discharge for Bailey, who was guarding a military train at the time of the shooting Oct. 3.

The sentence is subject to review by higher authorities.

Bailey's fatal wounding of schoolboy Song Joon Won was one of several shootings of Koreans by American GI guards which this month aroused Korean anger.

An eight-man court convicted the soldier on a charge of negligent homicide.

Two Korean witnesses testified they heard no warning shouts from the soldier.

Pfc. Arnold Thompson of Brooklyn, N. Y., who was on guard duty with Bailey, testified the victim apparently was reaching for the door of a boxcar when Bailey first yelled "Stop," then fired.

Gen. George H. Ecker, U. N. commander in Korea, said a week after the shooting that an investigation showed Bailey exceeded his authority in using his gun.

Too Many Autos Crashing Home

ALTOONA, Pa. (AP)—Walter Evans slept a little uneasily Monday night. So did his wife.

Late Monday afternoon two autos collided at an intersection a few feet from the Evans home at nearby East Freedom. The autos locked together and smashed into a wall of the house.

Little more than three hours later a truck and auto came together and they, too, smashed into the Evans home.

The wall of the home was damaged but no one was inside the house. Two of the four drivers were injured.

"It makes a person wonder if they shouldn't move to a safer location," Mrs. Evans said.

Grocer Dies In Gun Duel With Bandits

AKRON (AP)—Russell L. Foutty, 46, was shot to death Monday night in an apparent robbery attempt as he was putting his car away after driving home with the day's receipts from his grocery.

Police said that before Foutty died he shot and critically wounded one of his assailants, but the others escaped in an automobile.

Richard Miller, 26, of suburban Portage Lakes, is in Akron General Hospital with a bullet wound in the chest. Police said they had been seeking him as a parole violator since Jan. 1.

Three men were sought today as Miller's accomplices in the Foutty slaying. The other robbers fled following the exchange of shots without taking Foutty's money. In his pockets were found $1,574.

A neighbor, who did not hear the shots, found Foutty dead beside the driveway, and Miller wounded in Foutty's back yard. A loaded, unfired .32 revolver was found beside Miller.

Foutty's two children—Penny, 6, and Russell Jr., 8—raced to the back door just in time to see their father shot down.

"I saw daddy on his knees shooting his gun," Penny said.

Judge's Son Robs Bank For 'Kicks'

CANTON (AP)—A judge's son who said he craved excitement was jailed Monday night for stealing $20,000 in a weekend burglary of a bank where he worked as a teller.

Emmett D. Graybill Jr., 25, son of a Massillon municipal judge, was accused of taking the money from a drive-in branch of the Hartner Bank & Trust Co.

Police said he confessed the theft and led them to the spot in Massillon where he had buried the money in a tin can. They recovered most of it.

John B. Root, vice president of the bank, who discovered the shortage in a special audit Monday, said he was shocked at Graybill's confession.

"He told me he didn't need the money. He said he didn't know why he stole it. He said it gave him a good feeling—the excitement of it."

Graybill had worked for 14 months as one of three employees in the drive-in branch across the street from the bank's main downtown office. Unmarried, he had lived with his father in Massillon until recently, then moved to an apartment in Canton.

Root said the youth was investigated thoroughly before he was hired and had a clean record. He said it was just chance that Graybill was the first of the employees to be questioned by police.

He is scheduled to appear today before a U. S. commissioner.
